Excitement in Paris Over the Rochefort Arrest—Barricades in the Streets—The Troops in Readiness.

PARIS, Feb. 7—Evening.—HENRI ROCHEFORT, the editor of the Marseillaise, was arrested at his residence at Belleville, in the northeastern part of the city, at an early hour this evening. His friends and partisans are assembling in great crowds in that quarter, and serious troubles are expected.

FEB. 8—8 A. M.—The troubles at Belleville are serious. The streets are filled with shouting people, and barricading has commenced. A detachment of imperial troops arrived in the vicinity at about 11 o'clock.

9 A. M.—Barricades have been erected in the Rue du Faubourg du Temple, the Rue St. Maur, the Rue Grange aux Belles and other streets in the vicinity of Belleville. The scene of the disturbance is near the Northern and Strasbourg Railway stations. At 11:30 additional detachments of troops arrived, but up to this hour no firearms have been used. The troops in the garrisons in the vicinity of the city have received orders to hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's notice. Such are the precautions taken by the Police and military authorities that it is believed the riot will not be attended with any serious consequences.

7 A. M.—The troubles at Belleville lasted all night, and have extended northward to La Villette, the extreme northeastern arrondissement within the fortifications. The troops have not yet resorted to the use of their firearms. The Police have been active and made many arrests. Beyond the excitement naturally incident to such an occasion the rest of the city is tranquil. The Government still continues its precautionary measures to prevent outbreaks elsewhere.

Further Details of the Disturbance—Rochefort Arrested on the Way to a Meeting—The Meeting Adjourned to the Streets to Construct Barricades—Arrests.

PARIS, Feb. 8—12 o'clock noon.—The following details of the disorder in the Northeastern arrondissements are gleaned from the newspapers:

M. ROCHEFORT was arrested as he was on the point of entering a political meeting in the Rue de Flandre, (running from Belleville to La Villette.) Although there was a great crowd of people present, and mainly of his own partisans, he made no resistance and no appeals to the crowd. As soon as the arrest was made known to the meeting the wildest scenes occurred. GUSTAVE FLOURENS, who presided, rose excitedly, drew a sword, fired his revolver, and declared that the insurrection had begun. The meeting broke up in disorder, and the crowd, under the leadership of FLOURENS, immediately proceeded to barricade the streets. This was accomplished without loss of time, by the confiscation of omnibuses and other vehicles from stables in the neighborhood. A Commissary of Police, who accompanied the guard charged with the duty of arresting M. ROCHEFORT, was forced along with the crowd, and badly injured by their maltreatment. The district lying between the Rue du Faubourg du Temple and the fortifications at La Villette, a distance of about two miles, was in the possession of the rioters. At 11 o'clock a body of Police charged the barricade in the Rue du Faubourg du Temple and attempted to carry it, but was repulsed. One of the Commissaries was dangerously wounded and one policeman killed. At other places barricades had also been erected, but they were not defended. The military are now out in force, but thus far have made no use of their firearms, although the insurgents have. The latter had pillaged the armories, and in that way obtained their weapons. Several policemen were wounded with these in the skirmishes early in the evening. A great number of arrests have been made. At 3 o'clock this morning over three hundred persons had been taken into custody and imprisoned in the barracks Prince Eugene. Many of these were mere boys, all armed, and most of them under the influence of liquor. It is reported that GUSTAVE FLOURENS, who is looked upon as the leader of the rioters, has been arrested, but this is not yet confirmed. He is said to have announced to his mother, before going from home to the meeting, that if ROCHEFORT was arrested she probably would never see him again. At this hour all is quiet.

Debate on the Arrest in the Chambers—The Motive of the Government—Rumors in London.

PARIS, Feb. 8—6 P. M.—In the Corps Legislatif to-day, M. KERATRY, one of the Liberal Deputies, demanded to know why ROCHEFORT was not arrested before going to a political meeting where 4,000 persons were assembled. It was not necessary that this meeting should have been thus disturbed, and the people who were participating in it exposed to violence. The act of the Government was a provocation to the disturbances which took place. A member of the Ministry explained that the authorities had refrained from speaking ROCHEFORT at the Chambers in avoid the scandal to which his arrest at such a place would have given rise. He asserted that the friends of ROCHEFORT were prepared to make the demonstration which they had made, and upon this fact the Ministry would rest the responsibility of what had taken place, and the country would judge between the Ministry and the rioters. He said there need be no uneasiness for the people. The Government was animated by the best sentiments towards them. The Minister of the Interior followed, with the assertion that the friends of ROCHEFORT had determined upon a demonstration had ROCHEFORT been arrested at the Chambers. M. OLLIVIER praised the conduct of the Police in dealing with the disorders. He said they had acted with prudence and humanity.

LONDON, Feb. 8—6 P. M.—The news of the arrest of M. HENRI ROCHEFORT, and its consequence, have made a sensation here. There are many rumors afloat—one that the troops had fired on the crowd. These rumors, however, are generally discredited.

PARIS, Feb. 8—10 P. M.—At once to-day tranquillity had been restored in all the districts where disturbances arose last night, and up to this hour the city has remained quiet.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Opening of the British Parliament—The Queen's Speech—Expulsion of the Member from Tipperary to be Moved—Debate on the Address in the House of Commons.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The second session of the Eighth Parliament was opened to-day by Royal Commission, composed of the Lord Chancellor, the Earl DE GREY and RIPON, Lord SYDNEY and the Earl of BESSBOROUGH. Only a few Peers and Peeresses were present. At 2 o'clock the Commons were summoned to the bar of the House of Lords. Lord CAIRNS then read the Queen's speech, as follows:

LORDS AND GENTLEMEN: We have it in command from Her Majesty again to invite you to resume your arduous duties, and to express the regret of Her Majesty that her recent indisposition has prevented her from meeting you in person, as it had been her intention to do. You resume at a period of remarkable public interest. Friendly sentiments are entertained in all quarters towards this country, and these feelings Her Majesty cordially reciprocates. There is a growing disposition among nations to resort to the good offices of their allies in cases of international difference. The conciliatory spirit in which several such cases have recently been treated and determined encourage Her Majesty's confidence in the maintenance of general tranquillity. Papers will be laid before you with reference to the recent occurrences in New-Zealand.

GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS: The estimates for the approaching financial year are in a forward state of preparation. They are framed with a view, in the first place, to the effective maintenance of the public establishments, and will impose a diminished charge upon Her Majesty's subjects. The condition of the revenue has answered the expectations formed in the past session. Her Majesty trusts you will be disposed to carry into completion the inquiry you last year instituted into the mode of conducting Parliamentary and municipal elections, and thus prepare materials useful for early legislation.

LORDS AND GENTLEMEN: It will be proposed to amend the laws respecting the occupation and acquisition of land in Ireland in a manner adapted to the peculiar circumstances of that country, and calculated, as Her Majesty believes, to bring about improved relations between the several classes concerned in Irish agriculture, who, collectively, constitute the great bulk of the people. These provisions, matured by your impartiality and wisdom, as Her Majesty trusts, will tend to inspire among persons with whom such sentiments may still be wanting that steady confidence in law, and desire to render assistance in its effective administration, which mark Her Majesty's subjects in general. This will aid in consolidating the fabric of the Empire. We are further directed by Her Majesty to state that many other subjects of public importance appear to demand your care, and among these especially to inform you that a bill has been prepared for the enlargement on a comprehensive scale, of the means of national education. In fulfilment of an engagement to the Government of the United States, a bill will be proposed to you for the purpose of defining the status of subjects who are citizens of foreign countries and who may desire naturalization, and of aiding them in the attainment of that object. You will be invited to consider bills prepared in compliance with the reports of the Commission on Courts of Judicature for the improvement of the Constitution and procedure of the superior tribunal of original appellate jurisdiction. The question of religious tests in the Universities and Colleges of Oxford and Cambridge has been under discussion for many years. Her Majesty recommends such a legislative settlement of the question as may contribute to extend the usefulness of those great institutions, and heighten the respect with which they are justly regarded. Bills have been prepared for extending the incidence of rating and for placing the collection of the large sums locally raised for various purposes on a simple and uniform footing. Her Majesty likewise recommends you to undertake the amendment of the laws which regulate and grant licenses for the sale of fermented and spirituous liquors. Measures will be brought under your consideration facilitating the transfer of land for regulating the succession to real property in cases of intestacy, amending laws as to the disabilities of members of trade combinations, and for consolidating and improving the body of statutes which relates to merchant shipping. While commending to you these weighty matters of legislation, Her Majesty commands us to add that the recent extension of agrarian crime in several parts of Ireland, with its train of accompanying evils, has filled Her Majesty with painful concern. The Executive has employed freely the means at its command for the prevention of outrage. Partial improvement may be observed, although the number of offences within this class of crime has been by no means so great as at former periods. The indisposition to give evidence in aid of the administration of justice has been alike remarkable and injurious. For the removal of such evils Her Majesty places main reliance on the permanent operation of wise and necessary changes in the laws. She will not hesitate to recommend the adoption of special provisions, should such a policy appear during the session to be required by the paramount interest of peace and order. Upon these and all other subjects Her Majesty devoutly prays that your labors may be constantly attended by the blessing of God.

At the conclusion of the reading, the Marquis of HUNTLY, who was in full Highland costume, moved the address to the Queen, and the motion was seconded by the Earl of FIFE. The address refers almost solely to the Irish question. An appeal is made to the House of Lords to face the question generously and justly, content the tenants, and give peace and prosperity to the population. The Lord Chancellor said he regretted the absence of the Queen, and hoped that she would soon be well. The relations of Great Britain with foreign Powers were satisfactory. It was unfortunate that the Queen's speech made no allusion to the affairs of the colonies, their well-being not being a matter of indifference. He also regretted the absence of any reference to the distress prevailing in the country. It would have been well to have told the sufferers that their case was understood, and sympathy was felt for them. The measure to national education was commendable; but he was amazed to see Scotland and Ireland left out of the scheme. After commenting briefly on other topics of the speech, the Lord Chancellor gave way for a motion to adjourn. The motion to adjourn was not carried. Earl GRANVILLE rose and congratulated Lord CAIRNS on resuming the leadership of his party in the House of Lords. He then went into a vindication of the policy of the Government in Ireland. That policy was already producing the best effects. The Government had been unremitting in its efforts to establish order. SCULLY's case was among the earliest of the agrarian outrages and was universally reprobated. He justified the course pursued towards MAPOON, who refused to serve the Sheriff, and ended by deprecating the pressure of party feeling on the discussion of the land question. Earl GREY stated that the action of the last session had persuaded the Irish that the House was intimidated. Nothing was left but rigor in the maintenance of order. The Duke of MARLBOROUGH deprecated any forbearance. The remedial measures of the Government were a failure, and very visionary hopes were sanguine. Lord MONCK replied to Earl GREY, he (speaker) speech made by him in 1866, in which he expressed a preference for remedial to coercive measures. Lord MONCK thought the Ministerial plan was an effective one. With this speech the debate closed and the Address was agreed to. Lord REDESDALE was reelected Chairman of Committees of the House of Lords. The House then adjourned.

In the House of Commons many new members were sworn in, and a new writ of election for Dublin University was issued. Mr. GLADSTONE, on entering the Chamber, was vehemently cheered. One of his first official acts was to give notice that he should move for the expulsion of the member from Tipperary, because he was under a sentence of penal servitude, and the seat was consequently vacant. Notices were also given of the introduction of an Irish Land bill, an Education bill, and bills for the abolition of compulsory pilotage and for the repeal of the minority clauses in the Reform bill. In accordance with the arrangement previously announced, Captain FRANCIS BURTON, member for East Derbyshire, moved the reply to the Queen's speech, and supported his motion with a few remarks. He said the programme was most satisfactory. The royal speech was marked by care and ability. The measures promised were sure to be framed with care and prudence, and debated without faction, and he was confident they would have the approval and support of the House. Mr. CHARLES WENTWORTH DILKE, member for Chelsea, seconded the motion. He declared that the programme of the Government was the most elaborate ever laid before the House. The country required that they should carry the measures proposed, including the abolition of the University tests. He hoped for legislation also on trades' unions and other social questions. He was confident of the justice and fairness of the Ministers in all things.

Mr. DISRAELI rose and was heartily cheered. He thought discussion of important topics at such a moment unfitously. He would only refer briefly to Ireland. The Government tardily admitted that the state of that country was unsatisfactory, and made reforms contingent on future laws. Ireland was full of disaffection, murder and secret societies. The Government was bound to intervene. Old excuses, like that of the partiality of Irish juries, were now inadmissible. The loyalists were depressed and insulted. The Catholic priests heartily supported the Government. Trade in this agitation was made desperate by the Whig policy. Fenian influence, which had originated in America, and had been checked by the Marquis of ABERCORN, when Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, was now reviving. The land tenure still remains unchanged, and therefore could not be held responsible for the troubles, unless Ireland had bodily gone mad. She certainly cherished hopes, suggested by the Government, which it would be impossible to realize.

Mr. GLADSTONE replied. He admitted the difficult position of the Government. Their opponents, indeed, admitted the gravity of the situation, to remedy which the present may be the last opportunity. He complimented Mr. DISRAELI on the moderation of his Government. This Government, he added, desired to try further remedies. He ascribed the tone of Mr. DISRAELI's speech to a wish to satisfy extremes and a craving for coercion. He eulogized the Catholic clergy of Ireland for their loyalty and good sense. The present Government, he declared, was misunderstood in Ireland. He proceeded to answer seriatim the charges made by Mr. DISRAELI, and concluded with the declaration that he was conscious of having fulfilled his intention of seeking in all frankness conciliation rather than opposition. After desultory speeches from new members and others the House adjourned.

The Telegraph Transfer—Emigration as a Social Relief—Health of the Queen—Another Ocean Cable.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Since the transfer of the telegraph lines to the Government the amount of domestic telegraphing has increased fully one-third....Sir JOHN B. KAYE has written a communication to the London Globe urging on the Government systematized emigration as a social relief....Mr. GLADSTONE has written Professor ROGERS, approving of the removal of clerical disabilities....Her Majesty, the Queen, is still at Windsor. She will remain there till the 5th of March....The steamship Main, from Southampton, to-day, took $34,000 starting for New-York in specie....Another cable, to connect Wales and Rhode Island, is shortly to be laid. The contract for the cable, which is to cost £600,000, has just been signed....To-morrow the Oxford University boat crew will accept the challenge of the Cambridge crew for the regular annual race.

Reception and Hop of the Twenty-Second Regiment National Guard.

The officers and members of the Twenty-second Regiment, in association with the members of their Veteran Corps, gave a reception and hop last evening at the Academy of Music. The affair proved a splendid success, despite the storm prevailing all night. The interior of the Academy presented its usual splendid appearance. The stage machinery was deftly hidden by the customary canopy, and the rear of the stage was closed by a beautiful Oriental landscape. Suspended in mid-air, the regimental badge of the Twenty-second blazed in lines of fire, flanked on either side by the figures "1861" and "1869," commemorative of the past and present history of the command.

Just before the floor was thrown open to the line of promenaders, a committee of Company G presented a very handsomely engraved and framed resolutions to the representatives of the Providence Light Infantry. The Providence delegation returned the compliment by presenting a set of resolutions to the Twenty-second Board of Officers. These sets were intended to commemorate the double visit of the Twenty-second Regiment Boston Battalion to Providence, and of the Providence Light Infantry to this City. The Providence delegation are a fine set of men, and appeared to great advantage in their uniforms of scarlet and gold. Their names are as follows: Captain C. R. Dennis, First Lieutenant S. G. Tripps, Second Lieutenant W. E. Clarke, Third Lieutenant H. B. Cady, Fourth Lieutenant J. J. Jencks, Quartermaster F. J. Sheldon, Paymaster W. H. Tool, First Sergeant C. B. Bullock; Corporals Coombs, Allen and Marchant; Privates H. H. Fenner, W. H. Shaw, H. Allen, C. H. Hall and L. H. Humphry. A very handsome style of programme of dances and promenade music was provided by the Committees in the shape of the regimental badge, and it was received with many encomiums.

While the dancing was at its height the appearance of the ballroom was magnificent. The display of feminine toilettes was fully up to any previous ball at the Academy. Among those present we noticed Brigadier-Generals James McQuade and Tweed, and Colonel Moller, of the Governor's Staff; Major-General Woodward, of the Second Division, and Major-General Shaler, of the First Division; Brigadier-Generals Varian, Ward, Burger, Bendix and Moscatte were also visible, as well also Colonels Cushing, Ward, Clark of the Twelfth, Perley, Allen, Wilcox, Ward of the Twenty-third, and other leading officers of the New-York and Brooklyn regiments. The Reception Committee was headed by Colonel Josiah Porter, ex-Colonel Wm. W. Ramsey, Lieutenant-Colonel John T. Camp, Major David S. Brown, and Adjutant Wm. J. Harding. The Floor Committee was led by Captains Thomas Hale, Jr., R. Kelly Styles and William O. Emson; and the Police Committee consisted of Captain Wm. J. A. McGrath, Lieutenants Theo. H. Freeland, Edward Buskell, C. B. Topping, and others.

Dancing was kept up until an early hour this morning, and the ball was declared by all who participated as one of the successes of the Winter.

Masked Balls Last Night.

The French Society, Amis de la Gaite, had a masked ball at the Germania Assembly Rooms, in the Bowery, last evening, which was distinguished by fun fancy dress and amusing masks, and a lively time generally; and the German Schiller Lodge No. 68, Order of Odd Fellows, had a masquerade at the New-York Casino, in West Fourteenth-street, which was also a very delightful affair. Both balls were well attended.

GEORGE PEABODY.

Final Funeral Ceremonies in Massachusetts.

AN IMMENSE THRONG IN ATTENDANCE.

Funeral Oration by Hon. Robert C. Winthrop.

The Burial Place of the Great Philanthropist.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

PEABODY, Mass., Tuesday, Feb. 8, 1870.

The last resting place of the great philanthropist, GEORGE PEABODY, is called Harmony Grove. It is a cemetery removed just a sufficient distance from the noise, turmoil and bustle of everyday life to afford easy access to such as have friends reposing within its confines; and, from its beauty of location and its appropriate surroundings, is exactly such a spot as creates in the mind of the visitor those feelings and reflections which become one who desires to learn a lesson by inspecting the city of the dead. It borders the shore of a stream known as the North River, and is situated partly in Salem and partly in South Danvers, which latter place is now known as Peabody. Shortly after the Institute wherein the late philanthropist has lain in state now just one week was founded, the town of South Danvers was set off from Danvers, and out of respect to the good man who did so much for the improvement of its people, it was rechristened after his own name. In Salem, GEORGE PEABODY was first known as a boy, and there are those now living in the neighborhood who grew up with him, and recollect him when, about fifty years ago, he plied the humble but honorable vocation of a grocer's clerk. The store in which his early business efforts were made is still standing, and within a few days past has been pointed out to thousands of visitors. In the narrow attic of this building there is a small apartment, his bedroom in years long gone by, from which he has many a time viewed the spot which is now his final resting place. Then it was covered with a thick growth of walnut trees, and in Summer holidays the youngsters of Salem pursued their boyish sports within its shades. The thick walnut growth has disappeared; but if the natural beauties of the spot are gone, artistic beauties have come instead, to make the scene a charming one, and the designation, "Harmony Grove," is, in this connection, most appropriate.

THE CEMETERY.

The inclosed portion dedicated to purposes of sepulture has an area of about one hundred acres, through which avenues and walks have been run transversely, and their borders are all along adorned with shade trees and with flowering shrubs, set out with a view to give the best possible effect. The burial plots are regularly laid off, and many of them seem to be scrupulously cared for. Outside the cemetery, on a slight eminence, there may be seen a single clump of trees, the sole remnant of the grove that once covered this charming spot. These relics of olden time were probably left standing because the ground they occupy is too rocky and uneven to be easily devoted to practical uses. You enter the cemetery in two directions. Going into it from Peabody, you pass through a gate of rustic work, and from Salem under an archway of rubble stone, over which the woodbine, thickly grown, affords the wind an opportunity to chant in mournful cadences as you proceed. The westward side of the cemetery slopes downward towards the North River, which washes it for some distance. Looking eastwardly, you perceive that the ground is rather undulating, with a tendency to rise in its general conformation until it strikes the base of the hills which form the eastern border of the cemetery. Surmounting the highest of these eminences, you get an admirable view of the sea as well as the surrounding country. Passing down the principal avenue from the Salem entrance about 100 rods, you come to the Peabody burial plot, which lies on the side of this hill and faces southwesterly toward the river. In front of it is a stone wall about thirty feet in length and ten feet high. The side walls, at direct right angles with the front, strike the base of the hill, and run up the acclivity about twelve feet, but the hill has been so hollowed out as to give the plot a level surface of about thirty feet square. To enter the inclosure you ascend a small flight of stone steps, and are directly opposite a granite monument under which lie the remains of the PEABODY family who have gone before, and where those of the great philanthropist, which have been borne with so much pomp and circumstance across the sea, will repose quietly with kindred dust. The base of this monument is ten feet long, two feet high and four feet wide. Standing near each end of this is a block of granite about one foot in height, upon which is horizontally laid a marble slab eight feet long, three feet wide and three feet high, having somewhat the appearance of a coffin. On the base there are three panels inlaid with blocks of marble. Two of them are inscribed, but the third one—that on the left—is blank, and is hereafter to tell the visitor that one lies beneath whose memory is cherished by the two worlds. The two inscriptions on the other panels are:

THOMAS PEABODY, died 1811, aged 46.
JUDITH DODGE, his wife, died 1856, aged 90.
DAVID PEABODY, died July, 1815, aged 21.
AUSTIN B. PEABODY, died February, 1818, aged 22.

Looking to the left you see the town of Salem, where the early years of the honored dead were spent; on the other side is South Danvers, where the life since grown famous was so humbly begun; in front the North River, in which doubtless he often disported himself when a boy, rises and falls with the pulsations of the ocean—all these forming most appropriate surroundings for the last resting place of him whose name is hereafter to be a single synonym for benevolence. That this small plot of ground which holds his honored dust will become, in after time, a spot sacred to our fellow-countrymen of all sections of the Union, and especially as to those who claim him as their townsman, is write Sclish to doubt.

AT THE PEABODY INSTITUTE.

During the week that the remains have been lying in state at the Peabody Institute there has been a constant stream of visitors to view them. I say "view them," because it is the generic term for expressing the idea that people generally entertain concerning affairs of this character. In this particular instance, however, it is misapplied, for since the body was taken from the vault in Westminster no one has seen it. But the burial casket, the catafalque, and its sombre surroundings have been seen by probably 15,000 people, up to to-day, since the remains were brought from Portland a week ago. A more extended description than I gave in my last letter of the scene presented at the Institute may not be inappropriate here. The mortuary chamber for this occasion was the library hall of the office, a spacious apartment, on the first floor of the building. This was hung in sables; the surrounding objects, including the busts of HAWTHORNE, MILTON, SHAKESPEARE, WEBSTER and the deceased, being heavily draped with crape. In the centre of the apartment was a canopied catafalque thirteen feet high, ten feet long, and seven feet wide; the bed of this, three feet above the floor of the apartment, on which the coffin rested, being covered with black velvet with trimmings of silver fringe on the borders of its overhanging pediment. At each corner of the bier stood a church in silver alto-relievo, which, showing out against the sombre back ground, produced an excellent effect. On the front drapery of the catafalque was an elaborately wrought escutcheon, containing the initials "G. P.," and on the opposite end the motto, "Marce prime consistite omnes." Surmounting the casket not was a canopy of Grecian design, supported by four columns covered with black velvet, and fluted with silver cord. Two silver torches, crossed, were on the front, or facade of the canopy top, and on the opposite end a winged hour glass, also of silver work. The sides were decorated with, in one case, a wreath inclosing thirteen stars, and in the other, a single star inclosed in a serpent. Arabesque ornaments were on the upper corners, and in these were set black plumes tipped with white. Four urns were placed two at either side of the catafalque, each six feet in height. A life-size portrait of the deceased faced the front of the catafalque, and over it were gracefully draped the American and English flags. On the wall at the head of the burial casket were displayed the golden-framed portrait of Queen VICTORIA, presented to Mr. PEABODY, as is well known, by Her Majesty, as a token of her esteem, and in appreciation of his munificence towards the poor of London. The testimonials (gold medals) given him by Congress and other organizations, British and American, were placed below the portrait, and were displayed to good effect. As you entered from the main doorway of the library hall, these seen as one looked over the casket under the canopy, were the first objects which attracted attention, and their golden lustre was rendered all the more brilliant by reason of the sombreness of all their surroundings. The portrait and the medals are on a movable platform fitted into a safe which is both fire and burglar proof, and which can be brought to the front of it whenever desired. The American, British and French flags hung in crape fell from the facade of the building, above the front portico; and on the flagstaff of the edifice was an American flag, edged with sable, floating at half-mast.

THE FUNERAL CAR.

The funeral car used to convey the remains from the South Congregational Church, where the obsequies, given below, were held, to the cemetery was elaborately gotten up. It was fourteen feet long, eight feet wide and ten feet high, covered with black velvet, and was drawn by six plumed horses with caparisons of sable. The foot was decorated with a silver scroll-work inclosing thirteen stars. The drapings on the right side were faced with the British, and those on the left side with the American national escutcheon. On the rear drapery was the Peabody arms, surmounted by an eagle, and in the corners of the "full" the Peabody monogram. A bronze urn, in which incense was burning, was at each corner of the car, which, as it slowly moved toward the cemetery, attracted the gaze of the thousands who had come from near and far to witness the obsequies.

THE OBSEQUIES TO-DAY.

Just as at the receiving of the remains on board the Monarch in England; just as at the disembarkation therefrom at Portland on last Saturday week; just as at their deposit with funeral honors at the Institute in Peabody one week ago;—so on the occasion of these final obsequies to-day, the full effect of the pageantry was marred by the setting in of a blinding storm of snow. Notwithstanding these unwelcome attendants, however, the streets of Peabody were filled with multitudes of people anxious to witness the display. The thousands present told how great was the esteem in which the deceased philanthropist was held; and here, as at Portland, it was manifest that the sorrow for his departure was genuine and sincere. The adjoining town of Danvers fairly emptied itself into Peabody, as did also Salem and the smaller places in the immediate vicinity, while thousands of spectators were present from Boston, Charlestown and Portsmouth. Trains were run from Boston to Peabody at 7:30, 8:30, 9:30, and 10:45, and each of these was crowded, a very large proportion of the passengers being ladies. The town of Peabody never before had in its semi-rural streets so immense a gathering of people. Main-street, the principal thoroughfare, so far as its crowds were concerned, appeared somewhat as Broadway appears on holiday occasions, when some specially commemorative procession is passing through it. Notwithstanding this, there was no undue noise, no confusion. Quietude consonant with the occasion seemed to pervade the masses—the main desire on the part of every spectator being, apparently, to see the whole of the pageant. The South Congregational Church was the scene of the religious ceremonies. This, a very large building for a country town, was crowded in every part, and hundreds were standing about the entrance unable either to see or to hear what was going on inside; and yet with that peculiarity which marks the outsiders on all like occasions, they stood there as if unable to extract themselves in any other spot. When the procession began to move towards the cemetery the church bells tolled out a requiem, and minute guns from a battery of artillery marked the progress of the funeral line towards Harmony Grove. At noon the bells in Boston were tolled for one hour, by order of Mayor SHUTTLEFF, and the flags on the City Hall were during the whole day displayed at half mast.

THE DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.

Prince ARTHUR and his suite were present during the church ceremonies, and followed the remains to the cemetery. Car No. 70 of the Eastern Railroad was fitted up for their accommodation in going to and returning from Peabody. Eight of the seats were taken out of the centre part of this car, and an elegant sofa, with two easy chairs upholstered, to match the interior decorations of the vehicle, and a neat marble-top table, took their place. The floor was covered with an elegant Brussels carpet. To the credit of the Prince he is said, he seemed to be fully impressed with the solemnity of the occasion which had brought him to Boston, and it outward semblance to the index of interior thought, His Royal Highness was a real mourner over the remains. There were also present at the exercises his Honor Mayor SHUTTLEFF and a committee from the Boston Common Council; Governor CLAFLIN, of Massachusetts, and staff; committees from the towns of Salem and Danvers, with a committee from the Common Council of Portland, a committee of the Massachusetts Legislature, the Trustees of the Peabody Institute, and the committee of citizens of Peabody, elected to represent the town, and Captain COMMERAIS, and his officers, of the British steamer Monarch, who came down from Portland for this purpose.

IN THE CHURCH.

The church in which the religious ceremonies took place was most appropriately draped, so as to give a fine interior effect, and many of the private residences here displayed emblems. Admission to the office had to be secured by tickets, and none but those who were fortunate enough to get one were entitled to be spectators of the solemn ceremony. These, however, filled the church to overflowing. When Prince ARTHUR entered, accompanied by Colonel EUTHERSTONE, Lieutenant SEYMOUR and Minister THORNTON, every eye was turned upon the distinguished party; and when His Royal Highness was seated, he became the "observed of all observers." The Prince and suite occupied the seventh pew from the pulpit. Behind him sat Captain COMMERAIS, of the Monarch, and Captain MACONE, of the Plymouth, and the staff officers of Admiral HARRACOW, the Admiral himself being absent. In the immediate vicinity of the Prince were seated Governor CLAFLIN of Massachusetts, Governor CHAMBERLAIN, of Maine, Mayor SHUTTLEFF, of Boston, Mayor PUTNAM, of Portland, and the Mayors of Portsmouth, N. H., Salem, Newburyport, Lynn, Lawrence and Haverhill, Mass. Occupying the first six seats from the front aisle and to side of the church, were the relatives of the deceased, and most citizens of Peabody, Georgetown and neighborhoods of Colonel PEABODY, in his boyhood, and the trustees of the Institute. The order of exercises were as follows:

1. Voluntary.
2. Anthem.

"Unto thee all flesh shall come."—Mozart.

3. Scripture Lessons.

Read by Rev. DANIEL P. MANNIX, Pastor of the Peabody Memorial Church in Georgetown.

4. Hymn.
5. Prayer.

By Rev. ROBERT C. WINTHROP, LL.D., President of the Peabody Educational Fund.

6. Anthem.

"Their sun shall no more go down."—Tenbrunne.

7. Hymn.
8. Benediction.

The musical exercises were well rendered by a double quartette choir under the direction of Professor WILCOX, of Boston, the organ being the only accompanying instrument. Mr. WINTHROP's eulogy was delivered in a neat, admirable style of elocution. An elaborate sketch of it follows:

MR. WINTHROP'S ORATION.

After some fitting words of introduction Mr. WINTHROP proceeded: What a career has that been, of which the final scene is now, at length, before us! Who can contemplate its rise and progress, from the lowly cradle in this South Parish of Old Danvers—henceforth to be known of all men by his name—to the temporary repose in Westminster Abbey, followed by that august procession across the Atlantic, whose wake upon the waters will glow and sparkle to the end of time, growing more and more luminous with the lapse of years,—who, I say, can contemplate that career, from its humble commencement to its magnificent completion, without an irrepressible thrill of admiration, and almost of rapture? Who, certainly, can contemplate the immediate close of this extraordinary life without rejoicing, not only that it was so painless, so peaceful, so happy in itself; not only that it was so providentially postponed until he had been enabled, once more, to revisit his native land, to compute his great American benefactions, to hold personal intercourse with those friends at the South for whose welfare the largest and most cherished of those benefactions was designed, and to take solemn leave of those to whom he was bound by so many ties of affection or of blood,—but that it occurred at a time, and under circumstances, so peculiarly fortunate for attracting the largest attention, and for giving the widest impression and influence to his great and inspiring example? Perhaps, precisely this I believe, would have been the most gratifying consideration to our lamented friend himself, could he have distinctly foreseen all that has happened since he left you a few months since. Could it have been foretold him as he embarked, with feeble strength and tottering steps, on board his favorite Scotia, at New-York, on the 23d of September last, that shortly he was leaving kinsfolk and friends and native land for the last time, but that hardly four weeks would have elapsed, after his arrival at Liverpool, before he should be the subject of funeral honors, by command of the Queen of England, and should be down, for a time, beneath the consecrated sculpture of that far-famed Minster, among the kings and counselors of the earth; could it have been foretold him, that his acts would be the theme of eloquent tributes from high prelates of the Church, and from the highest Minister of the Crown, and that Great Britain and the United States—not always, nor often, alas! in perfect accord—should vie with each other in furnishing their proudest national ships to escort his remains over the ocean, exhibiting such a funeral fleet as the world, in all its history, had never witnessed before,—could all this have been whispered in his ear, as it was outside those last farewells of relatives and friends—he must, indeed, have been more than mortal not to have experienced some unwonted emotions of personal gratification and pride.

MR. PEABODY'S AMBITION.

Our lamented friend was not, indeed, without ambition. He not only liked to do grand things, but he liked to do them in a grand way. We all remember those sumptuous and princely banquets with which he sometimes diversified the habitual simplicity and frugality of his daily life. He was not without a decided taste for occasional display,—call it even ostentation, if you will. We certainly may not ascribe to him a prominent measure of that species of charity which shuns publicity, which shrinks from observation, of which, according to one of our Saviour's well-remembered injunctions, "doeth its alms in secret." He may, or he may not, have exercised as much of this kind of beneficence as any of those in similar condition around him. I fully believe that he did. We all understand, however, that

"Of that best portion of a good man's life,
His little, nameless, unremembered acts
Of kindness and of love,"

there can be no record except on high—or in the grateful hearts of those who have been aided and relieved. That record shall be revealed hereafter. The world can know little or nothing of it now. But any one must perceive, at a glance, that the mere act of sharing his wealth with our lamented friend illustrated and exercised was wholly incompatible with concealment or reserve. The great trusts which he established, the great institutions which he founded, the capacious and costly edifices which he erected, were things that could not be hid, whatever could not be done in a corner. They were, in their own inherent and essential nature, patent to the world's eye. He could not have performed these noble acts in his lifetime, as it was his peculiar choice to do, and as it will be his peculiar distinction and glory to have done, without suffering himself to be seen of men and hearing his name and recognized and celebrated as their author. He must have postponed them all, as others have done, for posthumous execution; he must have refrained from parting with his millions until death should have wrested them from a reluctant grasp, and he drank from the unworthy and polluted cup which inevitably attend upon such a career. He did not fail to remember, however—for he was no stranger to the Bible—that there were at least two modes of doing good commended in Holy Writ. He did not forget that the same glorious Gospel, which has the same incomparable sermon on the Mount, which said, "Let not the left hand know what thy right hand doeth," said also, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Thus, this might almost be regarded as the chosen motto of his large bounty, and might, not inappropriately, be inscribed on each one his munificent gifts.

The exhibition of this matchless example of munificence was not only the cherished aim of his later years. I am not without authority for saying that it was among the fondest wishes of his whole mature life. I cannot forget that in one of Providence's mysterious dispensations, which he bemoaned me some years since, after unfolding his plans and telling me substantially all that he designed to do—for almost every thing he did was of his own original designing,—and when I was filled with admiration and astonishment at the magnitude and stability of his purposes, he stated to me, with that unfeigned simplicity which characterized so much of his social intercourse and conversation, "Why, Mr. Winthrop, this is no new idea to me. From the earliest years of my manhood, I have contemplated some such disposition of my property; and I have prayed my Heavenly Father, day by day, that I might be spared, before I died, to show my gratitude for the blessings which He has bestowed upon me, by doing some great good to my fellow-men."

THE REVIEW OF HIS BENEFACTIONS.

It would afford a most inadequate measure of his munificence, were I to sum up the dollars or the pounds he has distributed; or the number of persons whom his personal improvidence, for dwellings or for schools, will have included, in years to come, on one side of the Atlantic or the other. Tried even by this narrow test, his beneficence has neither precedent nor parallel. But it is as having attracted and compelled the attention of mankind to the beauty, the nobleness, the true glory of living and dying for others: it is, as having raised the standard of munificence to a degree which has almost made it a new thing in the world; it is, as having exhibited a wisdom and a discrimination in selecting the objects, and in arranging the machinery, of his bounty, which alone entitle him, in the credit of an inventor, it is, as having, in the words of the brilliant GLADSTONE, "taught us how a man may be the master of his fortune, and not its slave;" it is, as having disarmed all considerations of caste, creed, condition, nationality, in his world-wide benisons, throughout nothing human, as after he had blessed me some years since, after unfolding his plans and telling me substantially all that he designed to do—for almost every thing he did was of his own original designing,—and when I was filled with admiration and astonishment at the magnitude and stability of his purposes, he stated to me, with that unfeigned simplicity which characterized so much of his social intercourse and conversation, "Why, Mr. Winthrop, this is no new idea to me. CURRENT NOTES.

M. J. McENTEE, the champion pedestrian, is sick in Burlington, Vt.

Bucks County, Penn., furnishes most of the cigars smoked in Philadelphia.

United States Senator BUCKINGHAM is expected to preside over the Connecticut Republican State Convention in Hartford to-day.

General LEE's health is not good, and his Virginia friends urge him to make a trip to Europe in the Spring.

The family of General SAMUEL HOUSTON is very poor, and Texas papers are making appeals for aid for them. The family consists of his widow and three young sons.

The Philadelphia branch of the Social Science Association has now over 100 members. Professor McILVAINE is to deliver a course of ten lectures before them, beginning this evening.

The Columbia Phœnix says there is one good thing, at least, to be credited to the present South Carolina Legislature, and that is the election of Ex-Governor J. L. ORR to the Judgeship.

Congressmen KELLOGG and SHERWOOD are delegates to the Connecticut Republican State Convention; but important business in Washington will not permit the latter to attend.

The Philadelphia Alumni of Brown University have recently organized, and they dined together last evening for the first time. There are forty of them.

Professor EPHRAIM W. GURNEY has been elected by the Board of Overseers of Harvard College, Dean of the Faculty. It is a new office—a sort of Vice-President.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON is to lecture on the "Natural History of the Intellect" to the Harvard students during the current collegiate year.

The first salmon of the season was caught in the Penobscot on Friday last. It weighed twenty and one-half pounds, and was sold for $1 a pound.

Baltimore complains that hogs dying with pneumonia are slaughtered there for home consumption, and that diseased sows are converted into Bologna sausages for its citizens.

The Board of Overseers of Harvard University have voted that there should be increased requirements in mathematics in examinations for admission, and that this study should hereafter be elective in the whole College course.

Maryland oyster dredgers complain of ill-treatment on board their vessels. One schooner which arrived at Baltimore the other day had on board one dead negro and sixteen others, most of whom were very ill. The United States Commissioner is to look into the matter.

Captain JAMES G. BIRNEY, of the Ninth United States Cavalry, died at Fort Davis, Texas, on the 16th of January. He was a nephew of the late General DAVID B. BIRNEY, and honorable scars of severe wounds testified to his faithful service during the rebellion.

A California paper says that there is no difficulty in finding, in either California, Oregon or Washington Territory, farming districts now unoccupied, which must become valuable and populous, and it thinks that these are the places which laborers out of employment should seek.

Boston gives its poor on Monday and Thursday, mutton soup with rice; on Tuesday and Friday, fish chowder; on Wednesday, beef soup with vegetables; on Saturday, bean soup with ship bread; and on Sunday, beef soup with dumplings.

Some rich men have pledged a large sum for the establishment of a new university on the line of the Pacific Railroad, somewhere east of the Rocky Mountains, and have selected Rev. H. H. TIMLOW, of East Cambridge, Mass., to locate it, and then to preside over it.

CHARLES THEODORE CARVALHOS, who has been a Chinese interpreter in San Francisco for many years, died at his residence there Jan. 29, after a lingering illness. He was educated at the British Consulate in Canton, and at the College in Hongkong.

In the early days, a bride's marriage portion consisted of a feather bed, six chairs, a cherry bureau and table, six cups and saucers, six teaspoons and a quantity of sand for sanding the floors. Nowadays the groom does not demand the sand even, if the bride's father will only liberally come down with the dust.

The Albany Argus, of yesterday, says that it is credibly informed that in a certain Congressional District in this state the Caucusing was sold out for a large money consideration, and that the member was publicly accused of it at a meeting last Fall, and challenged to bring the question before the Military Committee of Congress if he thought that injustice had been done him.

The members of the Tennessee Constitutional Convention visited the widow of Ex-President POLK, at her residence, in Nashville, on Saturday. General GORDON, on behalf of the Convention, delivered an appropriate address, and General JOHN C. BROWN responded for Mrs. POLK. Mr. T. D. CRAIGHEAD and wife, Mrs. FALL and B. BUCKNER and wife were present, and assisted Mrs. POLK in entertaining the visitors.

The San Francisco Alta says that the last year was not one of profit to the business men generally of California, and there is much reason to doubt whether the present one will be better. It insists, therefore, that the people must generally adapt themselves to circumstances—that laborers who have been demanding $5 a day must learn to work for $4, and the merchant who made twenty per cent profit must be content with ten, or even five.

A. B. MULLETT, Supervising Architect, has come to the conclusion that no place of its size in the country more requires a suitable building for the accommodation of the United States Courts, Post Office, Internal Revenue and other offices of the Government than Albany. He thinks that such a building as the Government needs would cost not less than $300,000; but an appropriation of $100,000 would be sufficient to commence operations.

SAMUEL TYLER, of Maryland, was chosen by the late Chief-Justice TANEY to prepare his biography, and after his death his executors and his family placed in Mr. TYLER'S hands all his private papers, even his private letters to his wife, for a period of fifty years. Mr. TYLER says that he has been very successful in accumulating materials for the biography, and that when the world comes to know the facts of the Chief Justice's life, even his enemies will consider the national glory enhanced by the virtues of so eminent a citizen.

A Card from the Sandy Hook Pilots.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The undersigned, Sandy Hook Pilots, in view of the friendly motives which induced you to publish in your valuable journal the statistics in relation to the pilots and pilotage of this port, giving us thereby the advantages of your extensive circulation, wish most sincerely to thank you, and, at the same time, assure you that your kind consideration shall ever be remembered by us.

The Manhattan Gas Company.

Your correspondent yesterday tells us how the present Manhattan Gas Company organized under the general law for industrial purposes, and that the old Manhattan Gas Company gave up its charter. Query—Has the present Manhattan Gas Company any power to open the streets to lay mains or even make connections? No such power is in the general law. They enter our houses and inspect and "shut off," I suppose, under the authority of the paper they make us sign when they consent to furnish us poor gas at exorbitant prices. But where do they get power to take up pavements? Cannot some City corporation or Albany ring find time a tap to drive off a portion of their profits for their own pockets? VICTIM.

Death of an Old New-Yorker.

Mr. ROBERT HAIT, formerly of No. 261 Broadway, died at Ramsgate, England, on the 1st inst., from the effects of a fall. Mr. HAIT was a native of Edinburgh, Scotland. In 1825 he, in conjunction with Mr. COLDEN, set up in this City a manufactory of jewelry, the firm being HAIT & COLDEN. In 1837 Mr. HAIT took the retail store No. 261 Broadway, in which he continued until 1854, when he retired from business. Mr. HAIT'S establishment was the oldest of the kind in the City, dating years before any of our present leading jewelers. In private life Mr. HAIT was distinguished for the gentle kindness of his disposition, and as a business man for his unswerving integrity.

THE "REIGN OF TERROR."

Views of a Correspondent upon the Prevalence of Crime—The Responsibility with the Newspaper Criticisms.

The efforts which you are daily making to direct public attention to the startled increase of crime in our midst, and to bring to light the apparently hidden causes which have produced such results, so worthy the highest commendation, and your persistent endeavors are having the effect of directing the thinking portion of the community to a more careful consideration of the subject, then they have ever before given it. All agree that in this "Reign of Terror," as you properly call it, neither the lives, rights nor property of respectable citizens are either protected or respected. In fact, the only life that seems to be safe is that of the convicted murderer; the only rights that seem to be protected are those of thieves and assassins, and the only property which is secure is the property of those who, in official capacity, have gorged themselves at the public crib.

Hitherto, I have noticed that in common with the Press generally, you have directed your attention principally to the individuals who commit the crimes, and incidentally to the causes which produced the criminals. Without seeming to reflect upon the fact that the character of a people, especially of the uneducated class, depends greatly upon the manner in which they are governed, and upon the virtue of their superiors, you have, in my opinion, attached rather the effect than the cause of our present troubles. To my mind, nothing is more certain than that any county, state or city, which has a corrupt Judiciary, an intriguing, selfish and cunning Executive, combined with an illiterate, extravagant and debased legislative branch, will produce an ignorant, reckless and dangerous community; and with the same certainty will a firm, wise and pure Judiciary, a faithful and efficient Executive, and an educated, economical and incorrupt Legislature, produce an honest, thriving and industrious people.

As we do not find the society in which we now live to be of the character last referred to, it is but natural that we should inquire the cause; and if it is evident that the crime, degradation and misery which surround us are but the effects of an apparent cause, is it not the height of folly to attack the former while our only safety lies in eradicating the latter? For example: Since the murder of Mr. TOWNSEND, the Press, with hardly an exception, has denounced the person who killed him with such violence and persistency, that a jury could not be found to-day in this county who would listen to any defence, however perfect, that might be offered in his behalf. This man has no political friends and no money, therefore he will be promptly tried, convicted and executed, and his death will be offered by the Society for the propagation of crime and ignorance, which now governs the City, as a morsel to appease the public appetite. Let me ask, does any intelligent citizen believe that the hanging of a person with power and friendless vagabonds is he would so anything towards purifying the moral atmosphere of the City? As long as JOHN HEAL and Sheriff JACKSON can defy death? Would the speedy execution of REYNOLDS have the effect of deterring the citizens from committing crimes of like character, or would it effect a change in such the political friendship of those through whom JOHN HEAL and JACKSON are protected, in order that they might indulge their wicked propensities with impunity?

A few days since, in your columns, I noticed an article headed "The reign of Terror," in which the writer reviewed the interviews which he had had with some of the leading men of our City Government, upon the subject of the increase of crime, and in which he gave some of the views expressed by them as to the causes which produced it. Had not the writer expressed doubt as to the correctness of their theories, I should not have troubled myself to write, or you to read, this article. I found all the chiefs of the article these words, "These officials should not be allowed to shirk the responsibility of a faithful performance of duties imposed upon them, even when they are not forced to it by the very terms of their oaths." They do not, as a fault and greatly at fault, is the patent to be denied. I trust that, having arrived at this conclusion, the writer will continue to direct his attention hereafter, more particularly to these officials. He must remember that the respectable portion of the community are still fast asleep—it may be, and it is to be hoped that it is the heavy sleep which just precedes awakening—and that in order to arouse them fully to their senses he must knock hard, and ding in their ears facts, not theories. If he will but pour a lunatic would attempt to alarm a sleeping household, when the building was on fire, by reading a chapter on the effects of combustibles on the front stage. It is the club of the policeman, and not his buttons, which produces terror in an unruly crowd. The ever affable and genial Mayor, as he is called, tells the writer of the above article, "that the Press, in attacking the City officials is pouring in the leather; that they are used to these things, and they glance off like bullets from a rhinoceros' hide." Comment upon such an admission from the Chief Executive of the City is unnecessary. But while the hide of the rhinoceros is well, as that of the official, it is unfortunately true, that there are parts on both which are not entirely impervious. A duckshot might not kill the former, but a common shot would; and while the latter would laugh at the sugar-coated pill of suggestion, he would be apt to wince at the daily exposure of his individual sins. It is said to soften, but we are informed we are servant, almost beyond the possibility of relief. The Press should, now especially, be as the watchman on his post, always on the alert to warn of danger. It is useless to call on the bar to avert the second-time members who should step forward, if only to save their constituents from the stigma of disgrace, which eventually will cling to them, for allowing a profession to which they have gained all that they have of honor or profit to be debauched and debased, either supinely stand aloof, or have corruptly leagued themselves with the perpetrators of the infamy. The younger bar, as a class, have the will, but need experience, power and leaders. An effort is being made among a few to revive an interest in the profession, but fear of consequences so thoroughly pervades the Bar generally, that but few come forward with a belief that the movement will prove successful in producing any lasting good. However, as the little star of Bethlehem led to great results, let us hope, at least, that this quiet and unpretentious movement may be productive of great and lasting benefits. All other ranks and classes in the community are, I feel, ready for the clear sunlight, and the Press alone, if anything, seems afraid to shine. Go, by up and ding. Say to the Judges, you were elected on the theory that you were respectable men, and that you would be honest, wise and fearless in the discharge of your duties. We intend to hold you to that theory. If you have, and exhibit, these qualities, we will give you credit for them. If on the contrary public opinion are to be found among the swallows prostitutes, and criminals of the City, we will expose you. If your decisions are against the respectable class and in favor of your associates, and if to your friends and your cronies you grant all the favors you can, regardless of the interests of the better and more numerous public class of lawyers, who are alike entitled to a patronage which is yours only as a public steward, we will give dates, instances and details, and will publish against you every well authenticated case which comes to our knowledge. Say to the District-Attorney, to you has been entrusted the protection of citizens from crime. You were elected on the presumption that you were an honest and an efficient man. It was expected that when you were elected that you would represent public humanity and equality; that you would ignore all political considerations in the discharge of your duties, and that you would protect the innocent as well as convict the guilty. Do what we have a right to expect of you and you will not find us backward in giving you credit. But if you allow yourself to be led by political friends, and your office to become a by-word and reproach, if you permit yourself to be made the tool for party purposes, or further advance your friends at the expense of your opponents; and if you fail to bring criminals to punishment, when guilty, or allow any other consideration but justice to guide you in your official action, we will expose you—we will give to the public the day, case and circumstance, and will do it in a manner to bring down upon your head the indignation of an outraged community. You have your choice as to which you will do. Give all other officials to understand you think and follow it up by action, and you will find their rhinoceros hides, as the Mayor aptly terms them, not so tough as he would have you believe.

In the article above referred to, it is said that our present District-Attorney gave it as his opinion that our troubles arise from a defect in the laws. He says "that he has always tried to do his duty, and that he believes the Magistrates should be elected by the people, that appeals should go directly to the Court of Appeals, and not at second hand through the Supreme Court." In cases on appeal such reasoning may be very logical and correct; but what about cases aggravated cases—not on appeal? How is delay in the trial of such in the first instance to be remedied? Is the law in any material points different now from what it was in times past, when society was protected and miscreants punished? Does the law in regard to appeals affect the case of the German who, two or three years ago, set fire to the tenement house in Twenty-seventh-street? Thirty-seven souls were caused the death of several of the inmates? Has he ever been tried? And are there no indictments filed away in the District-Attorney's office to be used when needed? Shall JACK REYNOLDS, or BURNS, had evidently smelled the subject when he made his remarks, have played out in New-York, and that his sport would only cost him three or four months up the river? Or, should he be duly convicted, shall he escape with a nominal fine? Is the law in regard to appeals more and materially different now than at the present leading jewelers? In private life Mr. HAIT was distinguished for the gentle kindness of his disposition, and as a business man for his unswerving integrity.

The younger bar, as a class, have the will, but need experience, power and leaders. An effort is being made among a few to revive an interest in the profession, but fear of consequences so thoroughly pervades the Bar generally, that but few come forward with a belief that the movement will prove successful in producing any lasting good. However, as the little star of Bethlehem led to great results, let us hope, at least, that this quiet and unpretentious movement may be productive of great and lasting benefits. All other ranks and classes in the community are, I feel, ready for the clear sunlight, and the Press alone, if anything, seems afraid to shine. Go, by up and ding. Say to the Judges, you were elected on the theory that you were respectable men, and that you would be honest, wise and fearless in the discharge of your duties. We intend to hold you to that theory. If you have, and exhibit, these qualities, we will give you credit for them. If on the contrary public opinion are to be found among the swallows prostitutes, and criminals of the City, we will expose you. If your decisions are against the respectable class and in favor of your associates, and if to your friends and your cronies you grant all the favors you can, regardless of the interests of the better and more numerous public class of lawyers, who are alike entitled to a patronage which is yours only as a public steward, we will give dates, instances and details, and will publish against you every well authenticated case which comes to our knowledge. Say to the District-Attorney, to you has been entrusted the protection of citizens from crime. You were elected on the presumption that you were an honest and an efficient man. It was expected that when you were elected that you would represent public humanity and equality; that you would ignore all political considerations in the discharge of your duties, and that you would protect the innocent as well as convict the guilty. Do what we have a right to expect of you and you will not find us backward in giving you credit. But if you allow yourself to be led by political friends, and your office to become a by-word and reproach, if you permit yourself to be made the tool for party purposes, or further advance your friends at the expense of your opponents; and if you fail to bring criminals to punishment, when guilty, or allow any other consideration but justice to guide you in your official action, we will expose you—we will give to the public the day, case and circumstance, and will do it in a manner to bring down upon your head the indignation of an outraged community. You have your choice as to which you will do. Give all other officials to understand you think and follow it up by action, and you will find their rhinoceros hides, as the Mayor aptly terms them, not so tough as he would have you believe.

In the article above referred to, it is said that our present District-Attorney gave it as his opinion that our troubles arise from a defect in the laws. He says "that he has always tried to do his duty, and that he believes the Magistrates should be elected by the people, that appeals should go directly to the Court of Appeals, and not at second hand through the Supreme Court." In cases on appeal such reasoning may be very logical and correct; but what about cases aggravated cases—not on appeal? How is delay in the trial of such in the first instance to be remedied? Is the law in any material points different now from what it was in times past, when society was protected and miscreants punished? Does the law in regard to appeals affect the case of the German who, two or three years ago, set fire to the tenement house in Twenty-seventh-street? Thirty-seven souls were caused the death of several of the inmates? Has he ever been tried? And are there no indictments filed away in the District-Attorney's office to be used when needed? Shall JACK REYNOLDS, or BURNS, had evidently smelled the subject when he made his remarks, have played out in New-York, and that his sport would only cost him three or four months up the

CURRENT NOTES.

Arrival of the Steamship Neptune—Capture of the Captain and Mate of the Ship Neptune Charged with Piratical Barbarity—The Statements of Eight Seamen.

The ship Neptune, from Liverpool, arrived at this port on the 6th inst., and immediately slips of the crew preferred charges of cruel and inhuman treatment against the captain and first and second mates.

This ship is the mate of the Fanny Foster, an hulk of which so many atrocities were perpetrated some time since, and created a profound sensation. Captain FRABODY, of the Neptune, has heretofore had charges of cruelty preferred against him, one of which related to a female passenger, whom, it is said, he confined in an outhouse on the deck, causing her death from hardship and exposure.

A general affidavit has been made by the eight seamen, setting off, recitals the various acts of cruelty alleged to have been perpetrated against them, preparatory to a civil suit being instituted by Mr. GEORGE H. SHIM, their counsel, to recover damages for the injuries they have sustained. In addition to this affidavit, each of the seamen has made a separate statement, in substance as follows:

STATEMENT OF JAMES BRADY.

I was born in Manchester, England, and am 19 years of age. I shipped in Liverpool, Dec. 14, 1869, for a voyage to New-York. Another the "Captain Cousins FRABODY put me in irons, and, while in irons, I felt asleep. The Captain found me asleep, and beat me on the head with a cowhide. He then took a broomstick under my knees and doubled me up so that I could not move. He then tied my hands in the irons with a sword, and struck me on the face with it, severely cutting my nose. He has beaten me several times with an iron belaying pin. The second mate (MOLAN) beat me on the head with a belaying pin, and then put me on the head with his knee and whole body, cutting my head and bruising my eye. He took me several times while I was at the wheel, and, on one occasion, called me to the aft cabin, where the Captain and mate called me to the cabin, where the Captain and mate put my foot on my side and head on the other side, in which position I was kept about an hour. He then made me walk around the pen. Captain FRABODY stood by when I was being punished, and would tell the second mate when he had beaten me enough.

STATEMENT OF RICHARD BOND.

I was born in Gloucestershire, England, and am 18 years of age. This was my first voyage on any ship. The second mate struck me on the head and bruised me in the face, and nearly knocked me overboard. He struck me on the face with an iron bar, from which I am still lame. He beat me nearly every day during the voyage, and would make me stand on my knees for nearly an hour, my body resting against the pigsty.

STATEMENT OF WILLIAM CARTER.

I was born in Cork, Ireland, and am 22 years of age. The Captain beat me in the face, and when I would fall down he would kick me in the face, so that my nose was crushed in a frightful manner. He beat me after with belaying pins, and on one occasion I was knocked down by the blows he gave me with his hands and then beaten more. The chief mate (BRAINE) also beat me with a belaying pin, and struck me on the mouth, splitting my lip. The second mate (MOLAN) put a rope around my neck and pulled it so tight that he choked me, and he threatened to hang me.

STATEMENT OF SAMUEL WITHEY.

I was born in Eastport, Me., and am 22 years of age. During the voyage the Captain beat me in the face with a belaying pin, disfiguring my face and breaking my nose. I was compelled to stand on my head with the other seamen for nearly an hour at a time.

STATEMENT OF JACOB MILLER.

I was born in Prussia and am 25 years of age. The captain knocked me down and kicked me on the back several times during the voyage. My nose was broken by a blow struck by the second mate with his fist. He also struck me on the head with a capstan bar, and I bear the marks of the blows. He also pulled to stand on my head, my feet resting on the pigsty.

STATEMENT OF WILLIAM GILES.

I was born in Boston, Mass., and am 22 years of age. The Captain beat me and kicked me every day during the voyage from Liverpool. On one occasion he put me on the back of my neck, with a shovel, knocking me down. One day, while I was on the horizontal yard, he struck me on my head and hands and made me fall from the yard. The second mate struck me on the head with a belaying pin. The second mate (MOLAN) then ordered me to the main yard, and when I got there he fired three shots at me, the balls passing close to my head. He struck me with a belaying pin on the mast, so that I fell down on the deck. The Captain afterwards struck me with brass knuckles from behind when I was at the wheel and knocked me down. The second mate beat me nearly every day, and struck me on the face with a belaying pin. He made me stand on my head until my eyes felt as if they would burst. My tongue came out of my mouth, and I thought I was dying. I fell to the floor in a faint. The mate called me a "damned lubber," and did not he would break my head.

STATEMENT OF CORNELIUS VINEBIN.

I was born in Lyons, France, and am 21 years of age. The second mate beat me on the head and body while I was on the forward, cutting my face and breaking my nose; I was also compelled to stand on my head.

STATEMENT OF ARTHUR LANDY.

I was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, and am 19 years of age. I have been twenty-six years on the sea. During the voyage from Liverpool, the Captain struck me in the face, cutting my lip badly. The second mate beat me almost every day, and one time he struck me on the mouth, knocking out two of my teeth, and when I was down he kicked me on my side and back. He also beat me with the chain hook and held me by the throat, while another man beat me with a swag. He compelled me to stand on my head for hours on end, with my feet resting against the main hatch.

The men say that no cause existed for the perpetration of the alleged cruelties. In addition to the civil suit for damages, a criminal prosecution is to be instituted against the officers.

A JAILOR IN JAIL.

Refusal of the Warden of the Tombs to Obey a Writ of Habeas Corpus—His Arrest by Order of Judge McCunn.

At a ball given on the night of the 1st inst. by one TEDDY WILLIAMS, in a saloon in the Eighth Ward, JAMES HEFFERNAN, who keeps a liquor saloon at No. 41 Mercer-street, and is an Inspector of Buildings under Mr. MCGEHEGAN, had some angry words with a girl named JENNIE COLLINS, which ended in a fight, the latter getting the worst of the combat.

The following day, HEFFERNAN made his appearance before Justice JOSEPH DOWLING, at the Tombs Police Court, and requested the issue of a warrant for the arrest of JENNIE COLLINS, on a charge of assault and defamation of character. When asked why he had not applied to Justice COX in Jefferson Market, which should have done as a resident of that district, HEFFERNAN stated that he did not wish to ask Justice COX for any favors, on the ground that he had opposed the election of that Magistrate. Justice DOWLING accepted this explanation, and in due time issued his warrant.

HOW THE TABLES WERE TURNED.

On Friday morning last JENNIE COLLINS appeared at the Tombs Police Court, expensively dressed in silks and velvet, and displaying an abundance of gold chains. She was accompanied by two other young women similarly dressed. When the case was called up by Judge DOWLING, HEFFERNAN stated that JENNIE had, without any provocation, greatly insulted him, and used both indecent and uncalled-for epithets in his remarks towards him. HEFFERNAN produced a witness in the person of JAKE ROGERS, proprietor of a dance house in Mercer-street, between Spring and Prince. He corroborated the evidence of HEFFERNAN, despite the assertion of JENNIE that he was not present when the alleged offence was committed. The girls were then called upon to tell their story. JENNIE had formerly been the mistress of ROGERS, and lived with him for four years; he had frequently persecuted her since their separation. On the night of the ball she met HEFFERNAN, who insulted her, and on her replying in a similar strain HEFFERNAN knocked her down and stamped upon her prone. She confessed having called HEFFERNAN bad names, but considered that she had great justification.

The Magistrate inclined to her opinion and rather astonished HEFFERNAN by directing Jennie to be discharged, and commanding a battery against him. This being done, Mr. HEFFERNAN was sent down stairs to a cell for trial.

HIS TRIAL AND CONVICTION.

On Saturday the case came to trial in the Special Sessions before Justices DOWLING and BERRY. Hon. PETER MCGEHEGAN, a member of the present State Legislature, appeared for the prisoner, and Mr. WM. F. HOWE for JENNIE. The assault was fully proved by competent witnesses, despite the efforts of counsel for the defence to vitiate the evidence on the ground of the disreputable character of the witnesses. On the other side, it was asserted that the complainant had endeavored to stab HEFFERNAN with a penknife at the time of the assault, though no previous mention of the fact had been made. ROGERS, the original witness, was not produced. The Court found HEFFERNAN guilty, and sentenced him to the City Prison for ten days and to pay a fine of $25.

On Monday, Judge MCCUNN issued a writ of habeas corpus, calling upon Warden JOHN STACOM, of the City Prison, to deliver the body of his prisoner, HEFFERNAN, at 11 o'clock that same morning. At half-past an hour's session Warden STACOM sent his deputy, Mr. MARK FINLEY, to the Court, and through him made the following return:

I, JOHN STACOM, Warden of the City Prison of the City of New-York, do certify that I received the annexed writ of habeas corpus on the 7th day of Feb., 1870, and I return that the imprisonment JOHN HEFFERNAN is in the custody of the Board of Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction, by me as their Warden of City Prison, and by virtue of the annexed writ of commitment, a true copy of which is here annexed. But I respectfully decline to produce the body, because of such final commitment, without the writ of the Board, authority therefor.

Respectfully submitted, JOHN STACOM,
Warden of the New-York City Prison.

NEW-YORK, Feb. 7, 1870.

Judge McCUNN insisted that the prisoner should be produced in Court, and adjourned the case until 4 o'clock to permit the Warden of the Tombs to make the requisite return. At that hour Mr. STACOM appeared before Judge McCUNN without the prisoner, and though the District-Attorney insisted that he had no right to withhold the person of HEFFERNAN, after receiving the return of the Board, the case was further adjourned until 10 o'clock yesterday morning. At that hour Warden STACOM made his appearance, though he did not bring the prisoner HEFFERNAN. The Court then was crowded, and the proceedings were interesting.

Judge McCUNN having taken his seat on the bench, Mr. CHARLES A. GOLDIER, clerk for Police Justice COX, and one of counsel for the petitioner, called attention to the affidavit of Mr. PETER MITCHELL, the other counsel in the case, which set forth that the writ had been duly served; that the hearing on the return had been adjourned over to 11 o'clock this morning, at which hour Mr. JOHN STACOM, the keeper of the City Prison, appeared in Court with the return, but refused to produce the prisoner. On this affidavit he moved to commit Mr. STACOM for contempt of Court.

DISTRICT-ATTORNEY GARVIN—There is a mistake in the gentleman's statement of the facts; the return was made yesterday.

JUDGE MCCUNN—I declined to receive the return yesterday because the prisoner was not also produced in Court.

District-Attorney GARVIN then produced the official return, showing the action of the Court of Special Sessions under which the prisoner was now held; the statute which provides that in such cases the District-Attorney shall be entitled to two days' notice of a hearing on the return to the writ; the statute which prohibits the issuing of a writ of habeas corpus while the Court of Oyer and Terminer was in session and the writ be made returnable before that Court, and also an affidavit showing that the Court of Oyer and Terminer was then in actual session. On these affidavits and statutes he proceeded to argue that the Judge had decided that no benefit was accorded to the public by this change of venue. That the Government suffered by this amendment a further loss of revenue from decrease in the revenue of the Internal Revenue department, as the prisoner was an cigars which were manufactured out of imported tobacco. The members of the Cigar Makers' Union No. — would, he was informed, soon respectfully petition the Legislative body; that the revenue in question of the Internal Revenue act of July 20, 1868, be repealed and the tariff of 25 cents per pound and 35 per cent. ad valorem imposed on all imported cigars, as the result of which the revenue would be increased. At a meeting of the — held in the City of — on the — day of —, 1870, the foregoing Memorial was indorsed and adopted, and President — and Secretary — of the Union — were directed to sign the same on behalf of the Union and to attach the seal thereof, and transmit the same to the honorable the Congress of the United States of America.

The Metropolitan Board of Health—Nuisance.

The Metropolitan Board of Health has deemed it necessary to promulgate the following ordinance concerning a kind of contagious disease which has not been seen and known before in this City. Great importance is attached to the prompt and general compliance with the requirements of the ordinance, because the ineffective malady to which it relates can be prevented from spreading if all the poor people who suffer from it, and all tenements in which it prevails, are reported to the Sanitary Bureau of the Board of Health for the special sanitary care that is required.

Ordinance—"It is hereby declared to be an additional ordinance of this Board that the disease known as the relapsing fever is hereby declared to be a disease of a contagious character within the meaning of the sixth section of the act of the Legislature of this State, and that the same reports are required to be made in respect to said disease as are required relative to any disease mentioned in said section." [Adopted by the Metropolitan Board of Health, Feb. 5, 1870.]

The Custom-House Carriage—How the New System Works.

Under the provisions of the new carriage system merchants and importers will be permitted to ride their bonded goods, upon application to the general carriage office, No. 72 Broadway, room No. 28. There has been considerable misunderstanding in regard to certain features of the new system. The Collector states that none but sworn officers will be allowed to handle goods while the duties remain unpaid, but when the permits have been given, any licensed cartman will be allowed to carry the goods of the merchant or importer by whom he is employed. Thus far, it is claimed by Mr. STACOM, the new General Appraiser, but, the system worked to the charge, Each day old abuses and errors come to light. Yesterday a number of prominent merchants applied for licenses for their cartmen. Among the number were Messrs. MAYLOR & CO., H. N. REYNOLDS & CO., F. H. WESTERVELT & CO., G. C. CORLISS & CO., JULIUS KNAPP, BEURE & CO., and many others. The General Superintendent decides that merchants who want licenses make application at once. The opposition to the new system has almost entirely ceased.

THE BROOKLYN WATER BOARD.

The Work of Last Year—Twenty-two Miles of Sewerage, and Twelve Miles of Street Paving—The Water Revenues.

The present Water and Sewerage Board, in Brooklyn, soon after its organization made itself known by what the Commissioners claimed was its legal title—the Permanent Water Board. It was desired by the Commissioners that it should be permanent, but there were thousands of the citizens who regarded it as an organization which should be as temporary as possible. The word "permanent" proving as to neither obnoxious nor popular, it was soon dropped from its title, and now it is—its place—but not easily interpreted Water and Sewerage Board. The report made to the Board of Aldermen on Monday furnishes the people with some general facts regarding the cost of the water that drinks and of the streets they walk upon, but how many persons are actually employed in the various departments, how many paid and if employed if not employed, does not appear. The list of employes of the Brooklyn Water Board is remarkable as a mystery by most citizens, and as in the book of magic mysteries the people are curious enough to wish to penetrate it. Of the sewerage given in the report, a few are here gathered.

The receipts of the Water Department in Jan. 1, 1869, amounted to $——. The labor, coal and other material necessary to the water supply cost at the rate of $22.85 per million gallons, and the quantity supplied to the City in 1869 was 17,620,000 gallons daily. The main and distribution pipes throughout the whole City are in length 307.32 miles. The length of sewers built during 1869 was 22.15 miles, and the total length of sewers of all grades built up to January, 1869, was 179.66 miles. The total number of connections made with sewers from 1859 to 1869 was 20,302.

In regard to paving, a large amount of work was done last year. Cobble-stones to all ended paid for by the localities immediately benefited by the pavements. The total length paved this season is 12¾ miles, viz.: of Nicolson, 1.22 miles; Miller, 1.64 miles; Scammel, 1.24; Belgian, 1.12; Improved Belgian, .32, and cobble-stone, 4.06 miles. The following table shows the amount of the several kinds of paving stone and the cost:

The severe storm impeded business operations, in all lines, to-day. Money was almost quite easy in comparison to previous days of the week, on call, and 6@7 per cent. per annum in the discount form, on prime grades of commercial paper. The City Bank Exchanges were only fair, and are, as against we, we are yesterday. The currency balance of the Government, after the afternoon was $2,742,[illegible], showing a further gain of about $600,000. The coin reserve was increased to $76,776,700, as against $76,177,[illegible] yesterday.

The Gold speculation was less confident, through the regular business hours of the day, and the price showed less firmness, the range having been from 129¾@131. The newspaper dispatches relative to the renewed excitement in Paris tended to strengthen the movement in the afternoon, but the dealings were not extensive, and the market closed without buoyancy on the basis of 130¾. An improved inquiry was reported for Foreign Exchanges, which ruled steady, with prime sixty-day sterling bills quoted at 108¾@109.

In the Public Funds the transactions, both at the Board and through private channels, were unusually light, and prices yielded a fraction, though the offerings of the several issues were inconsiderable.

At the Stock Exchange, the dealings in the Railway and Miscellaneous list indicated a fair degree of animation, with generally increased firmness in values. The Vanderbilt Stocks were buoyant. Lake Shore was particularly strong. Ohio Certificates also advanced rather sharply. At the close, the market was about steady, on the general list, though with less spirit noticeable. The street operations in the Rock Island Shares carried the price up to 118¾, which was the closing quotation. The following quotations were made after the late Boards of the Stock Exchange, as compared with the final prices of Monday:

The ruling of the United States Supreme Court in the Legal-tender case, as published to this morning's TIMES, gave additional interest to the business in the Railway Mortgages, which were in decidedly more favor with investment buyers at advancing prices. Central Pacific Sixes were taken as freely as offered, and closed quite buoyantly at 81¾. Union Pacific Sixes were quoted at 87@87¾. The recorded bids for the Railway Mortgages were as follows:

The illustrated edition of the Merchants' & Bankers' Almanac for 1870, just issued, makes an unusually attractive volume. In addition to the customary features, the publisher presents thirty-five steel-plate portraits of eminent bankers and merchants, and thirty-two wood-cut illustrations of banking business in this City. Only 250 copies of this edition have been printed.

The following shows the totals of the average of the leading items of the Philadelphia banks for the past and previous week:

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The arrest of M. ROCHEFORT in Paris was made early on the evening of the 7th, on his way to a political meeting near Belleville, which was the signal for the gathering of his friends and partisans in great crowds in the streets of that quarter. At 2 A. M. yesterday the streets of that section were barricaded, the people taking omnibuses and vehicles from stables. A force of the Police attempted to carry one of the barricades, but was repulsed with the loss of one man killed and another wounded. The other barricades were not defended. The insurgents obtained arms from various armories which they pillaged. The troops were out in force, but did not use firearms. About three hundred arrests were made, and at noon yesterday all was quiet.... The sessions of the British Parliament opened yesterday, when the Queen's Speech was read by a Commission, owing to the indisposition of Her Majesty. Among the Government measures to be brought forward at the present session are the amendment of Irish land tenure, a bill for the enlargement of the means of national education, and a bill to define the status of British subjects who desire naturalization in other countries. In the debate on the address the Lord Chancellor regretted the absence in the Queen's speech of any allusion to colonial affairs. In the House of Commons, Mr. GLADSTONE gave notice of a motion for the expulsion of the member from Tipperary, because he was under sentence of penal servitude, and the seat therefore vacant. The address to the Queen was then moved and was followed by debate.... Papal currency is excluded from circulation in France by order of the Government.... A contract has been made for a telegraph cable to be laid between Wales and Rhode Island, and was signed recently in London.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate yesterday, the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment by Iowa was announced. A resolution was adopted asking how much of the $100,000 appropriated for defending cotton claims has been expended, and in what manner. The resolution to allow the discussion of Indian treaties in open session, was agreed to after being so amended as to except confidential treaties transmitted by the President. A resolution was reported and adopted providing for a correspondence with foreign countries in regard to an international coinage. Among the bills reported were the bill to prevent encroachments upon harbors and the House bill for supplying the naval deficiencies, but with amendments doubling the appropriations. The West Point Appropriation bill was passed, as was also a bill relieving from political disabilities a number of persons named therein. Mr. SUMNER concluded his speech on the Census bill, after which, at 4:15, the Senate went into Executive session and subsequently adjourned.

In the House, Mr. PAINE gave notice that he should at a future day introduce a resolution changing the present rule of the House in regard to determining contested election cases, and providing for the selection of the Committee by lot. A long discussion ensued upon the resolution offered on Monday in regard to the publication of petitions against the franking privilege, in which the question of abolishing the issue of the Globe itself was seriously mooted; and several resolutions to that effect offered. The resolution was finally tabled by a vote of 72 to 63. Mr. INGERSOLL gave notice of the introduction of a joint resolution proposing to so amend the Constitution as to allow Congress to issue United States notes as legal tenders for debts. Mr. McCARTHY made a personal explanation in reply to a newspaper article charging him with being a shareholder in the Onondaga Salt Company, and thus influenced in his official conduct. He denied the truth of the article in question. A joint resolution was offered by Mr. LOGAN providing for the payment of a year's salary, as Secretary of War, to the family of the late General RAWLINS. The House, at 4:15 P. M., adjourned.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate yesterday, the bill to alter the Commissioners' map of Brooklyn was passed. The bill to abolish some private corporations was reported. The Canal Appropriation bill was ordered to a third reading. The One Hundred and Twenty-fifth-street Railroad bill was ordered to a third reading.

In the Assembly the bill to abolish the offices of Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent of the Onondaga Salt Springs, was discussed and ordered to a third reading. A long debate arose on the bill to amend the act to protect life and limb in various manufacturing operations, at the close of which the bill, with the stringent amendments of the Judiciary Committee stricken out, was ordered to a third reading. The Appropriation bill was made the special order for this forenoon. Among the bills introduced was one authorizing the Brooklyn Common Council to establish and maintain public baths. The House adjourned to 9:30 A. M. to-day.

GENERAL.

A meeting of railway representatives was held yesterday at Williamsport, Penn., to devise means to build a railroad direct from the Jersey shore to Buffalo.

The State Homeopathic Society met yesterday at the City Hall, in Albany. No public business was transacted. The annual address was delivered in the Assembly Chamber last evening.

The General Assembly of Virginia convened yesterday in Richmond. Among the first acts was the passage of a resolution asking Congress to remove all the political disabilities of the people of the State. Governor WALKER's Message was read in both branches.

A general order from the Headquarters of the Army, promulgated yesterday, in accordance with the act of Jan. 31, 1870, relieves all retired officers who have been assigned to duty from the 31st inst. Such as have been detailed as Professors in Colleges, may continue in that capacity, if desirable, under any private arrangement with the authorities. Retired officers are also permitted to enter private business and to change their residence and travel at their pleasure within the United States.

Mrs. AMELIA HOBBS has just been elected a Justice of the Peace in Jersey County, Illinois, by a majority of 36 votes.

A Portland (Me.) telegram says that Captain COMERFORD, of the Monarch, has received orders to sail direct for Portsmouth, England. He will leave on Saturday or Sunday.

The snow storm of yesterday extended as far north as Concord, N. H., according to our telegraphic dispatches, and south to Washington. The Hudson River Railroad was obstructed by heavy drifts.

The charter election in Binghamton, N. Y., yesterday, resulted in the reelection of Mayor COUGDON, (Republican,) and election of nine Republicans and one Democrat in the Board of Aldermen.

A very remarkable opinion was rendered yesterday by Judge BARNARD in the case of the Erie Railway Company vs. JOSEPH H. RAMSEY and others, in which the Judge charged one of the counsel in the case with violating the confidence imposed in him by his clients.

Georgia Awaits an Answer.

We trust that Georgia will not be denied the justice and courtesy of an early decision with regard to its claim for formal restoration. The tantalizing delays inflicted upon Virginia were a wrong and a blunder which should not be repeated. A good deed is mended or marred by the manner of doing it; and the action of Congress upon the requirements of Georgia will be deprived of half its efficacy if it be not prompt and conclusive.

There is, indeed, not a solitary decent excuse for delay. Georgia was put back into the provisional order of things that the bad faith of its Legislature might be corrected and the wrong it perpetrated redressed. That object has been achieved. The Legislature has been reorganized on a proper basis; the expelled colored members have been reseated, and the ineligible members who had taken possession of seats have been excluded. Poetical as well as practical justice has been satisfied. Thus constituted, the Legislature has ratified the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments; and its work awaits the approval of Congress. The character of General TERRY as a lawyer and a soldier is a guarantee that the spirit of the Reconstruction acts has been complied with; while the fact that they who have done all that the law prescribes to bring the State into harmony with the Union ask for the State's immediate admission, should induce Congress to interpose no unnecessary obstacle to the attainment of their purpose.

The treatment accorded to Virginia is, moreover, a precedent which should render the course of Congress smooth and direct. The conditions imposed upon Virginia may, with propriety be exacted from Georgia, and their imposition, we believe, will entail no inconvenience upon the latter State. Nor should there be much difficulty in determining another question which arises out of the peculiar circumstances of Georgia. The proceedings of the late Legislature challenge attention in respect of their validity. It elected Messrs. HILL and MILLER, who seek admission as Senators. Are their credentials derived from a body unlawfully constituted, and whose right to exist once Congress has denied,—entitled to acceptance? The case, as it seems to us, is not doubtful. The late Legislature, having violated the law in its own organization, could do nothing effectively; and the election of Senators, together with other of its proceedings, becomes null and void. We take it, too, that down to this moment the Government of the State is provisional merely, and that it will continue such until Congress, by its action, shall declare it otherwise.

Let this declaration be made with all convenient speed. They are enemies of the Republican Party not less than of the State who would conjure up doubts and difficulties or who would sacrifice the interests of substantial justice from an over-nice regard for technicalities. So far, Georgia has obeyed the law; now let it come in!

The Rochefort Riot.

Paris has been for the second time within a month on the brink of revolution. The Ministry, supported by an overwhelming majority of the representatives of the people, had resolved to carry the sentence against Deputy ROCHEFORT into execution, while the partisans of ROCHEFORT were equally determined to resist his arrest. A guard of policemen, sent on this duty, secured the offending Deputy while on the point of entering a political gathering of his partisans. The meeting was presided over by GUSTAVE FLOURENS, who lately resigned his connection with the Marseillaise on account of ROCHEFORT's refusal to provoke an insurrection at the funeral of VICTOR NOIR. FLOURENS had come prepared to turn the present occasion to account. Amidst the latest being announced by, in the doubly dramatic style of the true Parisian, crash, drew a sword, fired a pistol, and declared the insurrection begun! The rising was not destined to be of long duration, and its excited career of a few hours is summed up in the results of one policeman killed and several wounded, and some hundreds of the mob arrested, among whom were a number of boys in possession of arms and under the influence of liquor.

The occurrence affords another proof of how dear a price France has paid for seventeen years of deceitful tranquillity. Personal Government was an education as well as a system, and though itself dead, its results still live. After half a generation of repression, it was hardly to be expected that the restoration of freedom would be received with perfect moderation and calmness. There are at this moment in Paris between 300,000 and 400,000 workmen. Of these a large proportion have been drained from the agricultural pursuits of the provinces to assist in the creation of the modernized city. After fifteen years of power Baron HAUSSMANN and his plans have been suddenly laid aside, and many thousands of workmen deprived of their means of subsistence. Out of twenty lately arrested for shouting "Vive la Republique," seventeen were found to be masons out of employment. We have not, therefore, far to seek for the materials of a popular rising. Starving men are desperate, and the insane socialism of the Marseillaise, which promises to furnish bread and to abolish taxes, is eagerly caught at by the suffering multitude. For the stability of order in France there is nothing at present to be feared. The Ollivier Ministry has received unequivocal proofs that they possess the confidence of the country. Their firmness in meeting the present difficulty shows that they are equal to the problem of maintaining the public order. But the destitution of strong and excitable men is a danger that remains and under the influence of reckless demagogues may yet occasion trouble.

The House Census Bill—Is It Love's Labor Lost?

It would be a poor compliment to pay to those members of Congress who have the census question in charge, to predict that, after all, they will hopelessly fall back on the laws and schedules of 1850 and 1860. And yet this result is the one we have heard spoken of, in several quarters, as likely to take place. The Census Committees have marched up the hill of statistics with a column of twice ten thousand figures, and with the same column they have turned and marched down again. The mountains have prodigiously labored, and brought forth a mouse. Starting with the self-evident proposition that the codes for the Seventh and Eighth censuses were very defective, and quite unsuited to the year 1870, Congress, we are now told, will be driven back to adopt those despised systems and schedules.

We cannot believe that so lamentable a failure will be made. The House Census bill is clearly capable of amendment in such a way as to avoid it. Many excellent features were added to the bill after it was reported by the Census Committee—and among them some to which we had called special attention in the columns of the TIMES. The remarks of General GARFIELD and Mr. HALDEMAN in the House on the subject were thoroughly in earnest and full of good suggestions; but the Senate Committee to which the House bill was referred, looked upon it, we imagine, as an impracticable monstrosity in details, and reported a substitute which throws the whole matter back upon the old Census act.

When, at last, the Senate on Monday took up the long-delayed subject, it appeared that the Senate Committee had reported favorably to an adherence to the act of 1850, except for an amendment directing Secretary COX to so change the schedules and blanks as to make them "conform to the Constitution." By this is meant, of course, the change relating to the representation of the former slave population, which was fractional in 1850 and in 1860, but is so no longer. We shall admit that much that Senator CONKLING said regarding the vast expense and multitudinous details of the House bill is perfectly true—indeed we have labored hard to expose the same defects during the six weeks' incubation which his Committee have had on that bill. To his proposition that half a million should not be needlessly added to the expenses of the census we agree. But it is clear that some additional expense is necessary, from the natural growth of the country both in extent and population, and still more clear is it that the old act is not sufficient for the new requirements of to-day. A small, judicious expenditure, above that of 1860, will produce great results—particularly with the employment of experts for special duties. Mr. SUMNER's remarks on this point seem to be sound and well conceived. The new amendments to the Constitution require new legislation; and, in a word, while the House bill is overburdened, it should only be rejected when some worthy substitute is offered.

The House Select Committee on the Ninth Census was carefully and skillfully selected, and was put under the Chairmanship of the able and energetic GARFIELD. It worked diligently during the Congressional recess, in presence, as has been said, of the results of "statistical inquiry from the earliest historical period to the beginning of the nineteenth century," and with all the "growth of statistical science from the beginning of the nineteenth century to the present time," and with all the "systems of public statistics in the leading countries of Europe" at command, not to speak of the accumulated experiences of eight national censuses in this country. Surely these advantages to start with, and the sifting which the Committee's bill received during many weeks of earnest debate, with the noticeable amendments of Mr. HALDEMAN, of Pennsylvania, and others, ought to have produced something fit to become a nucleus for legislation. Grant that the bill is overloaded with details, as it certainly is; that it is but material for small better regroulding and recasting in other forms as the Senate may invent, still it at least deserves to be taken as the starting point for new legislation.

For example, one provision in the House bill would, if adopted, effectually eradicate from the American census that inquisitorial aspect which attaches of necessity to the old system of questions and headings relative to the private affairs of individuals and corporations. It forbids the enumerators and officers of the census from disclosing any part of the returns made to them, and from using any part of such returns or statements as evidence in Court, or for taxation, or for any purpose whatever except the census itself. We are persuaded that citizens who expect to fill up the schedules presented to them will welcome the relief afforded by such a provision, which, in fact, was recommended by us long ago. We believe, besides, that such a provision would greatly swell the aggregates of the census, so far as concerns the public wealth and annual gains. It is only by an official pledge that nothing revealed shall be used to the disadvantage or embarrassment of an individual, that confidence can be inspired or the [illegible]ch hoped for. The simplest way of inspiring such confidence is the stipulation that the only use made of the information shall be to ascertain the gross and corporate results, for census purposes only, which are made up of individual details.

Again we may commend the feature of the new schedules which avers discrimination between different occupations or pursuits, but embracing incomes, or net proceeds, from all sorts of business. And we suggest to the Senate that if they reject as a whole the overloaded House bill, they should at least save out of it some of its excellent and useful details.

Special Drawbacks or General Revision?

Mr. MORRILL's bill to aid the construction of seagoing vessels, steamboats and ships, by allowing drawback of duties on imported materials, is certainly better than the subsidy scheme, but that is perhaps all that can be said of it. The measure contains a general principle—and it is a principle too sound to be unjustly limited in its application. The shipbuilders see that they cannot compete with foreign yards unless they get their materials nearly or quite free. We admit that their conclusion is correct, but why not extend the relief to other trades which have just as high a claim on the consideration of Congress? The shipbuilders answer that if they can get the duty off materials they will furnish a new or enlarged outlet for American labor. That is very true; but the same may be said of other mechanical occupations which demand drawbacks.

It seems to us that Congress, in listening to a special appeal of this kind, would involve itself in an endless coil of embarrassment. One piece of special legislation of this sort is sure to be followed by another. Discriminate in behalf of one employment, and another presents itself at the door. And as listening to the demands of the shipbuilders will encourage other artisans to apply for similar relief, the latter, if repulsed on general grounds, will set up a cry of injustice, which they will have a perfect right to raise, and all sorts of political "pressure," lobbying, and log-rolling will then be used to obtain a similar privilege. Congress ought to revise the tariff in the interest of labor rather than of monopolies, and so give to American industry the relief which the free importation of raw materials would confer.

Price of a Bad Light.

A heavy fall of snow, accompanied with stormy winds, has sufficed to dispel an illusion which lately was growing rapidly upon us. The mild air, the bright sunshine, the blue skies, almost tempted some persons to believe that we had glided suddenly into a temperate Summer, or had slipped backwards into the glories of the Autumn. People who boast of their gardens out of town began to relate strange stories of plants making their appearance above the ground some months before they were due. Naturalists were startled to find caterpillars strolling about under the impression that Winter was over. The very sparrows, which seem to know everything, showed by their confident bearing that they felt assured they had seen the worst. Yesterday morning the sound of shovels clearing away the snow from the sidewalks told a different story. Here was Winter come again to satisfy those who had been crying out for seasonable weather. People who live in streets where the "Fake" pavement has been laid down rejoiced in their hearts, for the snow at least lays the dust. If, however, the head of any household had been cherishing dreams of early Summer and long hours of daylight, he was not likely to share this exultation. Once more his old enemies are upon him. The Winter bills are always heavy, and some of them seem to possess an inherent power of growth which is not to be explained by any ascertained laws. They cannot be kept down. Prudence and economy have no visible effect upon them. The more you try to reduce them, the heavier they become.

Every housekeeper knows what answers with special aptitude to this description. It is the gas bill—that fatal document which no one understands, and which is drawn up on principles known only to a few mysterious potentates. But still there are peculiarities connected with it which are within the range of our comprehension. When Winter comes in it begins to expand. That creates no surprise. But as the days grow shorter the gas bill attains to unnatural dimensions. A man who is determined to reduce his expenses shuts off several burners, and is convinced that he has burnt less gas one month than another. The "irrepressible" bill soon undeceives him. It makes a heavier demand upon his purse than ever. One correspondent has declared that he ceased to burn gas altogether for a certain period, and that the bill for that period came to much more than for the month when he did burn it. That gas should be actually dearer when you do not use it than when you do is one of those phenomena which ordinary methods cannot aspire to explain. It is quite clear, however, that the gas companies do not lose by it.

It takes a man of very rare acquirements to "read" a gas meter. Most people are obliged to believe anything they are told about its mysterious records. It is an instrument which is evidently capable of very strange vagaries, and somehow it seems to have a bitter animosity to gas consumers. Its tale is always to their disadvantage. The persons who undertake to supply us with the article take advantage of this well-known prejudice. They have the public entirely at their mercy, and in the first place sell them gas which gives out no light, and in the next place charge them for just what quantity they please. A house with so many rooms in it ought, they think, to use so much gas. They send in a bill for the amount thus arbitrarily fixed, the meter cannot bear witness against them, and so the profits of the company are constantly on an ascending scale. The arrangement is ingenious—but it may be carried a little too far. This Winter the gas companies have been unusually adventurous. We receive numerous complaints of their unfair dealing, and we are obliged to tell our correspondents that they have no easy method of redress. A gas meter may easily be "manipulated." If we had a very high-minded company, competition would soon work a cure. But practically there is no competition. A vile article is sent into the pipes, we are obliged to use it, and afterwards to pay any price that may be demanded for it. The gas now burnt in the City would be dear whatever it cost. Over and over again it has been proved to be extremely injurious to health. It is carelessly made, and proper means for purifying it are neglected. We submit to the companies that to charge more than is strictly right according to their own scale, for such light as they supply us with, is carrying enterprise in business to an imprudent point. They may not care for remonstrance, but exposure may be less insignificant in their eyes. Some of these days a meter will be looked and guarded, the record it presents will be calculated by an "expert," and then the truth will come out. It is bad enough to be defrauded in the article we buy. To be made to pay for something which we have not even had is still worse. The gas monopolists have stirred up much public discontent already this Winter, and it would be only discreet for them to stay their remorseless hands before making matters worse.

Our Petty Officers and Seamen.

We should be sorry to find that Congress, in concentrating its attention upon fleets, yards and engines, had overlooked a naval subject not a whit less important than any of these, namely, the training of our petty officers and seamen.

It is admitted that the old class of skilled seamen who gained for the American Navy so much of its glory and efficiency, is fast dwindling in numbers. How this result was brought about we shall not now particularize. It is enough to say that the same causes—and amongst them may be mentioned the substitution of steam propulsion for sail power—have affected all maritime nations. But while England and France have done something to counteract this tendency, we have done nothing. We have our schools of instruction and other devices for officers, but for sailors we have none. Our commercial rivals, as the Naval Bureau points out, have their maritime conscriptions, their training ships, their continuous service, their badges for good conduct, their medals for long and honorable service, their registries, their pensions, their gratuitous outfits, their longevity pay and rations. The consequence is that they maintain a splendid supply of able seamen, and a reserve for the exigency of war.

Ignorant or careless legislators are apt to think that all that is needed, in order to secure trained soldiers and sailors, is to stamp on the ground, fairy-book fashion, and cry "Come!" There is a fatal mistake in this matter, even as regards soldiers; but seamen never can be extemporized. As Mr. ROBESON has said, seamen constitute a distinct class, with strong features of resemblance all over the world, and everywhere differing from the body of the nations they represent; and "the best characteristics of this class are clearly the results of the discipline, training and traditions of the service in which they have been reared."

Let us now consider what remedy the Secretary proposes. He justly thinks that the "honorable discharge" in our service, by its indiscriminate bestowal, has done more harm than good, while the mere pittance of a pension does not compare in attraction with the pay, liberty and promotion with which the merchant service tempts seamen. The apprentice system, had it been properly cared for, would have helped to cure the evil, but it was abused, diverted from its object, and at length destroyed by an order limiting the total number of seamen in the navy to 8,000. Now, Great Britain has no less than thirty-one national vessels devoted to nautical education, and mainly to obtaining good petty officers and seamen, the crown of the ambition of all the pupils being the position of boatswain or gunner. The Government supports nautical schools for destitute boys like that on the Venus, frigate, near Woolwich, and the Akbar, frigate, a reform school near Liverpool.

What Secretary ROBESON proposes is, first, that our coast squadron shall combine a training school and a fleet for home defence—familiarizing officers with our coasts and harbors, and providing a disciplined corps of petty officers and seamen. In the next place he demands that all seamen belonging to the United States shall be registered, so that they can, in time of war, be called upon. Then will follow the abolition of the class known as "boarding and shipping masters," to whom the country is indebted for so many worthless and drunken men. He adds:

"By adopting as far as practicable a system of registry and enrollment for active and reserve seamen, introduced, it need be, by bounty, periodical advances of clothing and money, and a judicious system of 'furloughs' and 'pensions,' 'long service honors' and rations, and bounties when necessary, we may do much towards the speedy restoration of the personnel of our navy; and by adding to this a regular system of training for petty officers and first-class seamen, the military provision and glory may be maintained and increased."

We trust that these hints will not be lost on Congress. They are practical and politic and may be advantageously embodied in legislation.

The World which has discussed the new City Charter with conspicuous ability and industrious, is as much averse to the abolition of the Central Park Commission as we are. It says, "the management of the Central Park has been able, honest and efficient. It has had the uniform, cordial approbation of our citizens of both political parties." Our contemporary therefore opposes this provision in the Charter, and it has also protested, with equal courage and public spirit, against other features of the measure which it deems mischievous or unwise. The World has shown before now that it can rise superior to the blind dictates of party, and on this occasion we are glad to have its assistance in the effort to break up a huge nest of jobs.

While we censure the guilty let us do justice to the upright. There are several Judges on the Bench who are earnestly desirous, in the present crisis, of protecting the public by a rigid exercise of the law. The charge of Judge INGRAHAM will already have commended itself to the approval of our readers. On the same day a determination was exhibited in another quarter to frustrate that scheme of postponing trials which is so often found to result in the escape of the criminal. Recorder HACKETT and Judge SEDGWICK, whose decisions we have frequently had occasion to applaud, have offered to hold another branch of the General Sessions, in order to facilitate the criminal business. "Our desire," said the Recorder, "is so dispose of every case this month if possible." The public will not be unmindful of this proof of zeal in their behalf. The matter now rests with the District-Attorney, and if any failure of justice arises we shall know on whose shoulders to lay the responsibility. We can only say that any official who supposes that the mitred murder cases will be only a "nine days' wonder," and then be put out of sight and forgotten, is deluding himself at his own peril.

When Mr. BURLINGAME and his colleagues reach St. Petersburg, for which they are bound next, they will no doubt find the Czar quite ready to meet them half way, and add one more signature to the statesmanly "round-robin" of the Chinese Emperor. Indeed, the Russian Government has in a manner anticipated them by a recent treaty of trade with China, which still further extends the old overland facilities of intercourse, and provides for a long strip of "bonded" ground, fourteen miles broad, along the common boundary of the Empires, on which both parties may meet and trade without payment of duty—though if they go further in, on either side, they undergo the regular tariff. By the two treaties, maritime and continental, the interests of Russia and China will be very closely brought together.

The Philadelphia Board of Trade has just earnestly pressed, in its annual report, the importance of giving greater commercial facilities to that city. It claims that not only should the three great Pennsylvania staples gravitate naturally to Philadelphia for a market through coastwise and foreign vessels, but that, by reason of its railroad facilities, it should become the chief grain and provision depot on the Atlantic coast, as well as the great manufacturing centre of the Union. The trouble, however, seems to be that trade, like water, seeks its own channels, where there is free choice of routes. It cannot be claimed that our own railroads have sacrificed themselves particularly to the commercial needs of this City; and, nevertheless, the great line of imports and exports has fixed itself more and more firmly at New-York. What Philadelphia may possibly secure, however, are the entry and appraisal privileges for imported goods, now asked for by that city in common with Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis.

The Star has a very just and timely article with reference to the disinclination of "good citizens" to serve on juries. The Mayor has recently authorized the publication of some observations on the same subject; and it is undeniably a complaint which ought to be well considered by all who are interested in the maintenance of law and order. As the Star reminds us, it is not an unusual occurrence on the first day of term for the Courts to adjourn for want of a jury. "The security of the people, and the fate of thousands of dollars, daily rest upon the decision of men who are unable to remember the evidence." The best class of citizens would rather pay a fine than serve upon a jury. Yet, as our contemporary well says, they value the jury system very highly, and would resist its abolition to the last. The truth is that honest men ought just now to be eager rather than reluctant to serve on juries, in order to assist in weeding out the very worst class of criminals. Perhaps it would be well to make the fine for want of attendance very much larger in amount; but the best remedy would come from the people themselves. It is much to be hoped that they will see the necessity of doing their part—and it is no mean part—towards the reform of those judicial abuses which are so great a scandal to the community.

"Scratch the skin of a Russian and you will find a Tartar underneath" has been a common saying, which seems to be illustrated just now by the behaviour of a body of Socialists in Russia. They have put forth a savage sort of "pronouncement" against the Czar, declaring that he was drunk when he liberated the peasantry in 1861, and neglected to give them farms along with liberty. It is quite a Tartarly howl of downright ferocity, in the spirit of the free barbarians who came in with HOLAGOU, and throws the diatribes of ROCHEFORT into the shade. He never, that we are aware of, advised the French to set fire to the Tuileries, while these Russians talk of sending the "red cock" as they term it into the "Hermitage" and other Imperial dwellings. This is a high flight of democracy for such hyperboreans; and it may be mentioned as a curiosity of contemporary history.

It seems to us a very desperate piece of sensationalism on the part of the Montgomery Mail, to talk of new movements for secession. "We predict," says that authority, "that the divorce will be as follows." And thereupon it "cuts a castle off" from beyond the Rocky Mountains, as the "Pacific Republic;" a second slice it takes from the Northeast, to include the New-England States; a third from the Southwest, as the Texas Republic, which it gradiously augments by the "territory acquired from Mexico on this side of the Rocky Mountains, and perhaps South Missouri, Arkansas, the Indian Territory, and all of Louisiana on the other side of the Mississippi." All the rest, "New-York, and all within a line from Lake Erie down to the Ohio, thence along the Ohio and Mississippi to the Gulf," and including, above all, Montgomery, Ala., would constitute a fourth Republic. This, according to the Mail, would arrange the map about right; and with the coach-wheel of New-York and the fly of Montgomery, what a dust we should kick up! As to the Northwestern States, if they should not choose to come into the "Central, continental and Indian Republic," they would "find great difficulty in forming a land-locked Republic of their own," and so would be compelled to "fight out to the mouth of the St. Lawrence, shouldering Canada. This last would be the Lake Republic." All this might make a pretty puzzle as a dissected map, but it is not of much value as a "prediction." The Montgomery papers "predicted" so long that the country was to be divided on an altogether different plan, that perpetrators of all sorts from that quarter are at a heavy discount.

The old project for a submarine telegraph to Asia has been revived. This time, however, no subsidy has been sought, further than a provision for detaining United States vessels to assist the promotion of the enterprise; and to this, we suppose, there will be no objection, if the privilege be used in moderation. The establishment of a Pacific cable is, of course, but a question of a very few years at the furthest. The two Atlantic lines now working, and the other in prospect, render ocean telegraphy no longer an experiment. It may therefore be questioned whether the exclusive privilege of fourteen years demanded by the Company should be granted. Certainly the element of risk formerly presented to Congress has now greatly diminished. However, it is clear that we shall soon have a girdle round the earth, which will make Puck's brag of "forty minutes" a mere relic of the slow-coach era.

There has been a contest for several years between the importing merchants and the Government upon the question of inland freights and that of prospective protests. They have come before our Courts repeatedly, and have always been disposed of in one way, and yet we publish this morning a recent decision of Judge BLACHFORD's that a prospective protest may avail to a merchant, and that inland freight is not to be included in estimating the dutiable value of goods. We hope that some time or other these questions may be so settled that we shall hear no more of them. We do not know whether the Custom House officers treat them still as undecided, but the law officers of the Government seem to have treated them as such in this case, though what reason there was for not accepting and acting upon the previous decisions of the Courts is not apparent.

The condition of the night wanderers of New-York will be henceforth improved, since the Mission Building of the Five Points will afford them shelter, and the house in Pearl-street, already mentioned, will also receive them. Loafers and drunkards are not included in these benefactions; but they will be all the better for them in finding at least a larger allowance of room at the Station Houses. These improved places of night lodging will tend to bring the case of many indigent persons before those willing to help them, while it is to be hoped that some individuals of the worst class will also find, by contact with Christian philanthropists, a way of retrieving their lives and becoming something better than vagrants in society. The "missionary field" of New-York is a large one, and can afford a plentiful harvest.

It looks very much as if soldiers would soon find one of their traditional occupations gone. Pipeclaying belts and polishing muskets have for centuries been for the soldier what holystoning the decks was for the sailor—a sort of perpetual duty, never to be escaped, and always consuming leisure. But what holystoning is needed for iron decks, and what pipeclaying for black belts? The Government is now, we believe, contemplating the protection of the small arms, rifles, pistols, &c., used by troops in the field, with a cheap coating of nickel, to keep out rust. One of the chief occupations of the soldier, and especially after a march, or a drill in damp or rainy weather, has been the cleaning of his piece. The new nickel coating preserves the metal from rust, being incapable itself of oxidizing, while taking as high a polish as the steel, which it equals in hardness. Besides, the nickel is not tarnished by the gases from burnt powder, and accordingly keeps the lock and all the parts most heated by firing, perfectly clean. Both the Army and Navy Departments are experimenting with a view of adopting this simple device.

The London correspondent of the Tribune, Mr. G. W. SMALLEY, who is himself favorably known in the ranks of English journalism, informs us that the Daily News—a paper which vigorously supported the cause of the North throughout the war—has lately passed into the hands of Mr. DIGBY. This will be good news for Radicals everywhere. Mr. DIGBY is a man of great experience and ability, and has for some years past been a member of the editorial staff of the Daily Telegraph. If Mr. SMALLEY himself will give the new management the advantage of his help, especially in connection with American topics, all old friends of the Daily News will have reason to rejoice.

The men of the new Mormon "Reformation"—Messrs. KELSEY, HARRISON and others—will not have any "Defender of the Faith," but will revert to the purer idea of a theocracy, indistinctly invested with the phraseology of the Gospel dispensation—the twelve Apostles with an intermixture of the seventy, to give an idea of the Sanhedrim, and a "tithe-collecting" clause to add a prestige of the Middle Ages. The temporal and spiritual governments are to be distinct; but the temporalities will be sufficiently spiritualized, since they are to be governed by Bishops, who will collect the tithes and disburse money in good old Episcopal fashion. The new Church is a remarkable novelty; and if it were not a "theocracy," it might be called the play of "Hamlet" with the part of the Prince left out—for it says not a word of the old corner-stone of Mormonism, polygamy—not even a plank, probably, for such an airy platform.

The New-York and New-Jersey Tunnel bill, introduced into the Senate by Mr. FENTON, contemplates "a submerged tunnel, tube or covered way from New-York City to the New-Jersey shore opposite." The scheme of a North River tunnel is an old one, and has been more dwelt on than other plans for uniting the two shores on account of the vast sum required in bridge projects. This bill, however, regards the tunnel as one chiefly "for railway purposes," and as such, after the first novelty should wear off, it would be mainly used. Doubtless some pedestrian travel would always take that route; but, in the main, the difficulties of descending into the tunnel and ascending on the other side would prevent its being generally used, to say nothing of the other disadvantages familiar in tunnel experience. It would, therefore, of necessity be used more for carts than foot passengers, and it would interfere very much less with the system of the North River ferries than the Brooklyn Bridge will with the East River ferries. All practicable schemes for increasing transportation facilities across the island are to be welcomed.

WASHINGTON.

Census Bill in the Senate—Removal of the Brooklyn Navy Yard—Remarks of Nominal Senator—Removal of Political Disabilities—Other Matters.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Census bill, which mentioned in the Senate now, has the effect of always emptying the chamber. Such, at least, has been the experience of the last two days. Mr. SUMNER to-day continued his speech, in favor of the House measure and in opposition to the report of the Senate Committee, and to—as Mr. SUMNER styled it—the antediluvian measure of 1850." The Senate did not take much interest in the discussion, and, for the first time in a good many years, the Massachusetts Senator talked to half-deserted benches and an inattentive audience. He made a strong argument in reply to Mr. CONKLING, yesterday, and succeeded in convincing every one open to conviction that the old law was unsatisfactory and utterly incompetent in view of the rapid growth and development of the country. His recapitulation of the branches of industry omitted in the last census, and of the improper classification of subjects, will do much to convince the body that the labors of the House should not be entirely thrown away. Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, alluded to the lethargy and inattention of the Senate, and offered an amendment, which, if adopted, will have the effect of enlarging the scope of the old law, and will be some improvement on it. The probability is that the measure will finally be settled in Conference Committee.

REMOVAL OF THE BROOKLYN NAVY YARD.

General BLOCUM appeared before the House Naval Committee to-day, and advocated the removal of the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The Committee promised to take the matter into consideration. General BLOCUM alleges that it can be done not only without cost to the Government, but to its profit, as the real estate and wharf privileges of the one hundred and ninety acres now occupied by the yard would sell for far more than it would cost to remove and locate the yard at some interior point, say fifty miles up the Hudson. It would also be an improvement, General BLOCUM believes, morally and politically, to Brooklyn.

RETURNS OF NATIONAL BANKS.

The annual returns of the 1,614 national banks for the year ending Sept. 30, 1869, which are just tabulated and condensed, show the following interesting facts:

Aggregate loans for the year	$1,703,082,450 73
Number of loans	2,149,103 00
Average duration of credits or loans, 65 days.
United States taxes paid	10,622,182 62
State taxes paid	3,727,711 60
Total taxes paid	14,349,894 22
Expenses	15,021,690 13
Total expenses	29,364,622 37
Net profits	87,272,047 38
Dividends	43,268,375 18
Carried to surplus fund	14,612,342 40

Average rate of dividend, 10½ per cent.

General FRANCIS A. WALKER has resigned his position as Deputy Special Commissioner of the Revenue, and will, it is understood, enter at once upon his duties as Superintendent of the Census, having been appointed to that office by Secretary COX under the law of 1850, which is now in force. Should a new law be passed vesting his appointment in the President, he will be nominated and confirmed to that position.

REMOVAL OF DISABILITIES.

A long disability bill was passed by the Senate to-day, but not, however, without a slight commotion. An amendment after amendment was offered by Senators, which were simply adding a few names to the list of those who were to be pardoned. Senator STEWART moved that the disabilities of all persons, except those specially excepted by the terms of the third section of the Fourteenth Amendment, should be removed on their filing an application in any of the United States Courts; the provision to take effect after the issuing of the proclamation of ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment. Nearly all the Southern members were thrown into a flurry in an instant. ROBERTSON, of South Carolina, and WARNER were on their feet to interpose objections, and in another instant were talking with Mr. STEWART on the subject. Mr. SUMNER, too, was moved to interpose an objection, and, from the temper shown by the Senate, it was evident that the time has not yet come for the passage of this general amnesty.

THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE PETITIONS.

There was a sharp debate in the House this morning on Mr. LAFLIN's resolution, providing that the immense number of petitions now pouring in for the abolition of the franking privilege shall not be recorded in the Globe. Members of Congress are literally being overrun with them, and are quite annoyed thereat. It is claimed that it costs over $100 per day to print the record of petitions in the Globe; and as their circulation has been promoted by the Postmaster-General, that gentleman came in for more or less commendation from several of the members. The resolution, however, was finally tabled, many members feeling that the sacred right of petition could in no other way be preserved than by recording petitions in this matter, so that as it stands now the Postmaster-General, so far as his action is involved in the matter, has been sustained by the House.

WORK BY THE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee this morning agreed to report favorably the nomination of General SICKLES as Minister to Spain. The nomination of J. RUSSELL JONES as Minister to Belgium was taken up, but no action was had further than to send for some papers in his case. The Reciprocity Treaty with the Sandwich Islands was considered, and the time for its ratification was extended. When this treaty was last before the Senate there was a majority in favor of its ratification, though not the requisite two-thirds. It is doubtful if the sentiment towards it has changed. Nothing was done by the Committee regarding San Domingo and St. Thomas. The time for the ratification of the San Domingo treaty will also probably be extended.

DULLNESS IN CONGRESS.

Both Houses of Congress were unusually dull to-day. The Senate was chiefly engaged on the Census, and the House on the contested election case of COVODE-FOSTER, which was not finished, but went over until to-morrow, when it will come up again as unfinished business.

RIVER AND HARBOR APPROPRIATION.

The Committee on Commerce, of the House, has not yet taken any steps toward maturing a River and Harbor Appropriation bill, but will probably take the question up in a short time. A large number of petitions, resolutions and bills are before the Committee, amounting in the aggregate to many millions of dollars. To judge from the present temper of Congress, there is not much probability that very large sums will be voted in this direction during the session.

MINES DISASTERS.

The bill of Representative HAY, looking to some legislation by the General Government on the subject of mining disasters, concerning loss of life, &c., which was offered some time ago and referred to the Mining Committee, does not receive much favor in that body. The opinion of the Committee appears to be that any legislative action which they might take in that direction would be clearly unconstitutional and an interference with the rights of the States.

PERSONAL.

A very large number of visitors have arrived in the city yesterday and to-day. Among the arrivals from the North are Hon. A. H. Rice, Editor Quincy and A. A. Lawrence, of Boston; Governor Ward, of New-Jersey; Hon. W. A. Darling, Richard Schell, Isaac Dayton, H. E. Dayton, S. B. Hart, N. M. Beckwith, R. L. Belknap, Hiram Barney, and F. H. Delano, of New-York; F. M. Carmichael and General J. B. Stonehouse, of Albany; and Hon. Geo. H. Halsey, of Newark.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

A POSTAL CONVENTION.

An additional postal convention has been concluded between the United States and Italy, reducing the rate of international letter postage on letters exchanged in closed mails, via England, from 18 to 10 cents per single rate of fifteen grammes, (half ounce,) prepayment optional, to take effect Feb. 15, 1870. The rates of postage, conditions of payment, &c., on newspapers, book packets, and samples of merchandise, remain unchanged. Printed matter, etc., are directed to be kept and exchanged accordingly on and after Feb. 1, 1870.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Feb. 8.

The Vice-President laid before the Senate resolutions of the Iowa Legislature, ratifying the Fifteenth Amendment.

Mr. SUMNER presented resolutions of the Legislature of Massachusetts, relating to the French spoliation claims. Laid on the table.

RAILWAY BILLS INTRODUCED.

Among bills introduced were the following:

By Mr. TIPTON—Granting lands to aid in the construction of a railroad from Dakota Territory to Iowa. Referred.

By Mr. RAMSEY—Authorizing the Northern Pacific Railroad to issue bonds for the construction of their road and secure the same by mortgage. Referred.

By Mr. WILLIAMS—Granting lands to aid in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from Columbia River to Puget Sound. Referred.

RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were offered:

By Mr. ANTHONY—Calling upon the President for information as to how much of the appropriations heretofore made, amounting to $100,000, to provide for the defense of certain suits, known as the cotton cases, now pending in the Court of Claims, has been expended, to whom, and what services have been rendered by the clerks in the Treasury Department and other persons. Agreed to.

By Mr. THURMAN—Instructing the Committee on Judiciary to report whether the act of Congress of 1867, prohibiting men from being put on trial for, or convicted of, any crime committed prior to the date of the act, is now in force. Adopted.

By Mr. EDMUNDS, which was agreed to—Calling upon the Attorney-General for a statement of the number and cost of the bank petitions, if any, for the abolition of the franking privilege, sent from the Post Office Department since Sept. 1, 1869, the number and cost of circulars on the subject, and of what funds payable to the contractor for printing franked matter sent and received by the Postmaster-General during January, 1870, with an analysis showing the quantity referable to each Department and to the two Houses of Congress, and how many persons in each Department are entitled to frank mail matter.

Mr. BAYARD's resolution calling for information of a similar character, was called up and passed.

OPEN CONSIDERATION OF INDIAN TREATIES.

Mr. DRAKE called up the resolution to amend the rules of the Senate so as to provide that hereafter Indian treaties shall be considered in open session.

The resolution was so amended as not to apply to treaties transmitted by the President for confidential consideration, and agreed to.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. SHERMAN, from the Finance Committee, reported a resolution requesting the President, if not incompatible with the public interests, to institute a correspondence with Great Britain and other foreign Powers, with a view to promote the adoption, by the Legislatures of several Powers, of a common standard of international coinage, and that such correspondence be submitted to Congress. Adopted.

Mr. SUMNER, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported a bill to provide for the appointment of a Solicitor of the Department of State, and for additional clerks in the Department. Also, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, a bill to repeal the charter of the Medical Association of the District of Columbia.

Mr. MORRILL, of Maine, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported with amendments the House bill to supply the deficiencies in the naval appropriations; also, to increase the appropriation for the Bureau of Steam Engineering from $600,000 to $1,000,000, and the appropriation for the Bureau of Construction and Repair from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

Mr. CONKLING, from the Committee on Commerce, reported with amendments a bill to prevent encroachments upon the harbors of the United States.

BILLS PASSED.

On motion of Mr. WILSON, the West Point Appropriation bill and the bill setting apart a portion of the Fort Snelling military reservation for a permanent military post, and the settlement of all claims relating thereto, were passed.

RELIEF FROM POLITICAL DISABILITIES.

On motion of Mr. KELLOGG, the bill to relieve all persons named therein from legal and political disabilities imposed by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States was taken up. The bill contains a large number of names of persons in the lately rebellious States. Various amendments, inserting additional names, were agreed to.

Mr. STEWART moved to amend by inserting the following as an additional section:

That all persons now disqualified to hold office by the third section of the fourteenth article of the amendment to the Constitution of the United States, except members of Congress, Judges of the United States Courts, and all officers of the army and navy who afterwards participated in the rebellion, shall be relieved from such disabilities upon filing an application in any Circuit or District Court of the United States; this section to take effect from and after the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution, and the proclamation thereof by the proper department.

Mr. DAVIS said he honored the Senator for the magnanimous and generous liberality that had induced him to offer the amendment; but he appealed to him not to press it now, but to offer it separately, as its effect would be to jeopardize the measure.

Mr. STEWART said the time was rapidly approaching when general legislation on the subject would be impossible, except upon conditions of policy, but to remedy a practice which had grown up of imposing upon members of Congress false representations in regard to applications for political relief. He then withdrew his amendment, in deference to what he said appeared to be the general feeling.

Mr. JOHNSON moved to insert three additional names.

Mr. SUMNER demanded the regular orders, remarking that the names proposed should not be inserted until after they had undergone careful consideration of a committee. He had lately received a letter from Virginia intimating that Congress had acted imprudently in relieving the disabilities of various persons; that such persons had since spoken disrespectfully of Congress. He desired the Senate to proceed cautiously in dispensing such favors.

Mr. HONNER said the Senator from Massachusetts appeared to be governed entirely by partisan considerations in extending Congressional clemency, and therefore in the eyes of that Senator any one who had spoken disrespectfully of Congress, and thereby indicated a purpose to act independently in politics, had committed a grievous offence. For himself he wished to understand whether the test to be applied to persons applying for relief from their disabilities was to be their supposed future party usefulness, or of obedience to law. The amendment being agreed to, the bill was passed.

THE CENSUS.

The Census bill was then taken up and

Mr. SUMNER continued his argument in advocacy of the House bill. He claimed that the cost of an improved census, such as the country required, was not a sufficient ground of objection, inasmuch as, if taking it under the law of 1850, the census would in the end require a similar amount of expenditure, various amendments of the old law being indispensable in the matter of compensation. The limitation of prices, which were sufficient in 1850, were totally inadequate in 1870, and that at the rate of $1 50 per day, which was the average pay of an enumerator under the old law, it would be impossible for the Government to secure the services of competent persons. He proceeded to show that the machinery of the old law was inadequate, and would not do the work now required; that the schedules prepared in 1850 would not accommodate the returns from our present greatly-increased manufacturing industries and mining interests, and that provision might be made for some inquiry concerning the social and sanitary condition of the great Republic.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, moved to amend by providing that the census shall embrace educational statistics upon the subjects of pauperism, molasses, grape wine, cocoon silk, wages of labor, telegraphs, railroads, statistics and labor lands.

At 4:15 the Senate voted to go into Executive Session, and immediately afterwards adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Several petitions against the franking privilege were presented by Messrs. POTTER, STEVENSON and STEVENS; and Mr. WOOD presented a memorial of the Cigar Makers' Union No. 15, of New-York, asking relief from unjust taxation.

CONTESTED ELECTIONS—A NEW RULE.

Mr. PAINE, Chairman of the Committee on Elections, gave notice that he would at some future day offer the following resolution, which was ordered to be printed:

Resolved, That the following be adopted as a rule of the House: A Special Committee on Elections shall be raised in the following manner: The Speaker shall designate a day for the choice of such Committee, and shall give the House at least five days notice thereof. At 12 o'clock in the forenoon of the day so designated, the members of the Committee on Elections shall meet publicly in the hall of the House of Representatives, and shall prepare a list of the names of Representatives holding uncontested seats in the House, stating such as shall have served in the Congress during the present session of Congress; and excepting also such as shall have been already designated as members of two special committees of elections during the current term of Congress. The Committee shall then inclose in a box all the names on such list, and after the same shall have been thoroughly intermingled, shall draw twenty-one to be drawn out as members of the Committee. The Committee shall then proceed to choose by ballot a Chairman from their number, and shall report the same to the House, when any member of the House may move to add to the Committee the name of any member of the House not on said list, and the question on such motion shall be decided without debate. The Committee shall have power to send for persons and papers, to administer oaths, to employ a clerk and a messenger, and to report at any time by bill or resolution. The Committee shall have power to divide itself into two subcommittees of five members each, to be designated by the chairman of the Committee, one of which subcommittees shall be charged with the duty of hearing and reporting on the votes to be presented to the House for the adoption of the Committee on Elections, so far as the same shall be applicable thereto. The final decision of a majority of the whole Special Committee on Elections shall be reported to the House, and shall be taken as the decision of the House, unless the House shall otherwise determine. This rule shall not apply to any case in which a final report shall have been adopted by the House, or in which the committee of Elections before the adoption of the same; nor shall it be the rule at the House of Representatives of any future Congress, unless expressly adopted by such House.

Objection having been made by Mr. MAYNARD, the Speaker decided that notice had not been given under the rule.

THE GLOBE AND THE PUBLICATION OF PETITIONS.

The resolution offered yesterday by Mr. LAFLIN declaring the publication in the Globe of the printed petition against the franking privilege, as issued under the direction of the Postmaster-General, to be a wasteful expenditure of the public money, and directing the discontinuance of such publication, came up as the first business in order.

Mr. LAFLIN addressed the House in explanation and advocacy of it. He denied that his proposition interfered in any way with the right of petition. In fact so jealous was he of that right that he made his resolution apply by description to those printed petitions got up by the Postmaster-General. He had noticed in the Globe report of last Thursday's proceedings that there were nearly four columns of these notices of petitions, which he calculated cost from $60 to $100 per day, and if they are to be continued will cost from $60,000 to $15,000 for the session.

Mr. LOGAN opposed the resolution, taking the ground that notices of petitions must either be read in the House or published in the proceedings, so as to notify Congress of the wishes of the people.

Mr. ALLISON also opposed it, contending that the right of petition was a sacred right, and one which in no manner should be abridged. If they were to undertake to say what should or should not be published in the Globe, they would have to publish which to exclude, and which to include.

Mr. FERRIS inquired of Mr. LAFLIN as to the cost of a single day's publication of the Globe.

Mr. LAFLIN stated that he had calculated the cost of last Friday's issue of the Globe from $1,200 to $1,300.

Mr. DAVIS inquired what the Globe was good for, if nothing was published.

Mr. LAFLIN preferred to leave the answer to that question to the good sense of the House.

Mr. DAVIS suggested an amendment to abolish the Congressional Globe.

Mr. LAFLIN refused to accept the amendment.

Mr. GARFIELD said he desired to offer as an amendment to a resolution declaring that it is a wasteful expenditure of the public money to continue the publication of the Congressional Globe, and directing the Committee on Public Printing to inquire into the expediency of discontinuing its further publication.

Mr. LAFLIN said he would accept the proposition as an eminently proper one at the proper time, but he did not feel called upon to admit it in connection with his resolution.

Mr. GARFIELD said two things had tended to ruin legitimate debate in the House. One was the publication of the Globe, containing speeches never spoken; and the other was the establishment of the hour rule. Whatever good things might be embodied in the Globe, they were enveloped in a vast mass of essays, written and delivered, or printed without being delivered, and were buried forevermore in dusty, musty, out-of-the-way places, to be got at except by antiquarian researches.

Mr. STRONG opposed Mr. LAFLIN's resolution. Believing in the right of petition, he could not vote for anything that would seem to abridge that right. He had voted for the abolition of the franking privilege, not under compulsion, but freely and cheerfully.

Mr. CONGER spoke in repudiation of the idea that the petitions against the franking privilege were not the voluntary act of the people, but were dictated by the Postmaster-General.

After further discussion Mr. LAFLIN's resolution, on motion of Mr. WADSWORTH, laid on the table by a vote of 73 to 65.

CONGRESS AS A BANKING INSTITUTION.

Mr. INGERSOLL asked leave to introduce, for reference to the Judiciary Committee, a joint resolution proposing to amend the Constitution by adding an article as follows:

That Congress shall have power to issue United States notes and may make them a legal tender in payment of debts.

Mr. KRUTZ objected.

Mr. INGERSOLL gave notice that he would introduce it the first opportunity.

THE FOSTER-COVODE ELECTION CASE.

Mr. CHURCHILL, from the Committee on Elections, called up the report in the case of the Twenty-first Congressional District of Pennsylvania, with resolutions that HENRY D. FOSTER is not entitled to the seat, and that JOHN COVODE is. He proceeded to address the House in advocacy of the report. Mr. RANDALL took the floor to address the House in favor of the claim of Mr. FOSTER, but yielded temporarily for other business, as follows:

POLITICAL DISABILITIES.

Mr. WHITTEMORE, from the Reconstruction Committee, reported back a bill to remove political disabilities from certain persons, and to absolve them from taking the test oath. Recommitted.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA POOR.

On motion of Mr. COOK, the bill for the temporary relief of the poor and destitute people of the District of Columbia, taken from the Speaker's table, the House amendments insisted on, and a conference committee asked.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.

Mr. JUDD introduced a bill making appropriations for the enlargement of the harbor of Chicago, which was referred.

Mr. STRICKLAND introduced a bill for the improvement of the harbors of Ontonagon, Marquette and Eagle Harbor, Michigan. Referred.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Mr. O'NEILL—Calling for information as to the navigable condition of the Savannah River between its mouth and Savannah, the necessity and cost of its improvement, &c. Adopted.

By Mr. LOGAN—A joint resolution for the payment to the family of the late Secretary of War, ROGER A. PRYOR, of his year's salary, less the amount paid to him as salary before his death. Passed.

Mr. PORTER asked leave to offer a resolution as to the incompetency of Jno. L. MANYS, appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Virginia, to hold office.

Mr. BROOKS objected.

THE ELECTION CASE AGAIN.

The House then resumed the consideration of the Foster-Covode contested election case. While Mr. RANDALL was addressing the House he yielded the floor to Mr. PAINE.

ANOTHER INTERRUPTION OF THE DEBATE.

Mr. PAINE, Chairman of the Election Committee, asked to be excused from further service on that Committee, remarking that while his personal relations with all the members were pleasant, there were such differences of opinion between some of them and himself on vital questions underlying their duty, that he thought it best to be excused.

Mr. RANDALL declined to yield the floor for that purpose, and hoped that the gentleman from Wisconsin would not be excused. That gentleman was doing much good there, although he was often overwhelmed. Still he always meant right. If any act of his (Mr. RANDALL's) could prevent the gentleman being excused, that act should be performed.

ADJOURNMENT.

Without concluding his remarks, Mr. RANDALL yielded for a motion to adjourn, and the House at 4:15 o'clock adjourned.

Joseph P. Bradley, of New-Jersey.

Mr. JOSEPH P. BRADLEY, of Newark, N. J., whose nomination was sent in to the Senate on Monday for one of the vacancies on the Bench of the United States Supreme Court, is a legal gentleman ranking among the first of his profession in New-Jersey, and has enjoyed a large practice in the Supreme Court at Washington.

The Newark Advertiser of last evening gives what is probably a trustworthy statement of his character and merits, and of the estimation in which he is held where he is best known. He is about 56 years of age, was born near Albany, graduated with high honor at Rutger's College, in 1836, in the same class with ex-Senator FRELINGHUYSEN, and ex-Governors NEWELL and PARKER, and has since been engaged in the successful practice of his profession. The Advertiser says:

Mr. BRADLEY is beloved in this community, and trusted by man and child as few men are, but he is not notorious. His fame has been won in the steady, and in firmness contest in courts of last resort; his local reputation rests upon a pure, charitable, kindly Christian life and manly deportment. Even in the political arena, where by nature he might well belong, he has never been conspicuous, though in all the sturdy faith which New-Jersey Republicanism has made he has been a trusted counsellor. In doubtful times he never blinded. He concealed fire kindled the flames of the party, his courage never wavered. Not an office-seeker, caring nor hoping for no public position, he has been first among the calm minds which directed our party action, and always regardless of temporary success, he has been an advanced Republican, never touched nor tainted by Johnsonism, always insisting upon the pivotal idea of the equal right before the law of all men, without regard to color or previous condition. He is a Republican in the best and largest sense of the word."

CUBA.

The Outrage on Americans in Havana—Bombardment of the Surrender—The Wounded Beaten by the Mob—Another Murder.

HAVANA, Feb. 8.—The declarations of HENRY S. PERRIN, UPON JOHNSON and GEORGE WELLS, the Americans who were assaulted in the street by an unknown man, were taken before the American Consul-General. They all agreed in charging the assassination of ISAAC GREENWOLD as most inhuman and without cause. GREENWOLD was buried yesterday, but to-day the body was exhumed for the purpose of embalming it. The corpse will be forwarded to New-York. After the assassin had shot GREENWOLD, a mob assembled and commenced to beat GREENWOLD and the two wounded men, shouting "kill the insurgents." HARRY FOURNS is not expected to recover. JOHNSON appeared to be better to-day. No one has yet been arrested for the outrage. An old man named PHILLIPS, a carpenter on The Havana Railroad, was killed Sunday night.

THE EAST.

Crimes and Casualties near Boston—Political Matters in New-Hampshire—Destruction of a Paper Mill in Connecticut.

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—JAMES O'CONNELL, aged 18 years, was killed this morning by a slung shot, during an affray in Warrington-street. Three persons are under arrest on suspicion of committing the homicide....FREDERICK BARDEN, foreman in the Boston rolling mill at Cambridgeport, was caught in the machinery to-day and drawn between rollers three inches apart. He was a resident of Newton, 32 years old, and unmarried....An old man named JACOBS, living alone in a retired spot half a mile from the village of Stoughton, was murdered on Sunday night. Two negroes have been arrested on suspicion of being the murderers. JACOBS was 68 years of age, and had charge of a farm owned by an elderly woman, HANNAH BIRD, and lived in the house with her. WM. WHITE and wife, and a man named PHILLIPS, all colored, or under arrest.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 8.—The Labor Reform Party are to open their campaign in New-Hampshire next Tuesday by a speech at Concord from S. FLINT, their candidate for Governor. On Friday they will issue a campaign paper of 15,000 copies, edited by J. H. GOODALE, to be followed by another. They claim at least 8,000 votes in the State. If they get them it will defeat an election of Governor by the people and throw it in the Legislature, when Governor STEARNS will undoubtedly be reflected. They also claim they can elect a sufficient number of their candidates to the Legislature to defeat an election of United States Senator next June, relying on the adherence to their favorites of the Republican members. Their State and local tickets will be independent of old parties. Neither of the other parties have announced public speakers, while Mr. FLINT will occupy the field until the election....The Temperance Party has but little prominence at the present time.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 8.—The paper mill of TALCOTT & MINER, known as the Granite Mills, in Talcottville, was burned on Monday night. The loss is about $25,000; insurance $13,000.

THE WEST.

Savages of Sandfper Among the Indians—Groundless Rumor of an Indian War—Fatally Frozen.

FORT BENTON, Mon., Feb. 7.—A party of half breeds, just in from the Indian camps on the Marias River, report that the Indians are dying at the rate of twenty-five per day, of small-pox, and are begging the whites to spare their lives. The report that Mountain Chief's band and others had declared war, proves wholly untrue.

CORNING, W. T., Feb. 7.—At Blue Creek Station, on the 1st inst., a boarding house cut of the Central Pacific Railroad caught fire, as is supposed, from sparks from a passing locomotive. An employe of the Company, named JOSEPH BULL, was sleeping in the car, and escaped with serious burns and in a nude condition. He had to walk two miles to reach a habitation, and his feet were frozen. He was brought to this place for medical treatment, and died on Saturday.

STATE LEGISLATURES.

A Project to Divide the State of Missouri—Kansas Instructing Her Representatives—New-Jersey and Cuba.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 8.—In a Democratic caucus at Jefferson City, last night, the constitutional amendment recently introduced in the Senate relating to the enfranchisement of all disfranchised persons was discussed, and a resolution adopted declaring it the purpose of the caucus to support such a proposition. A scheme was developed yesterday for a division of the State of Missouri, the river to be the dividing line. The scheme seems to be based on the alleged unequal division of offices, both State and national. A proposition to appoint female assistants to the State Superintendency of Public Schools was defeated in the House; also, that colored teachers should be given the preference in colored schools; also, that colored children should have the privilege of attending white schools where separate schools for colored children were not established. Reference to the proceedings of the Woman's Suffrage Association here on Saturday night was made in both Houses yesterday. In the Senate a spicy discussion followed.

In the Kansas Legislature yesterday resolutions were adopted instructing Senators, and requesting Representatives in Congress, to endeavor to obtain a speedy adjustment of the "rebel prize claims," memorializing Congress to protect the frontier and protesting against a reduction of the army, and asking Congress to appropriate money for the building of a Court House, Custom and Revenue Office at Leavenworth, and a Federal Court House and Post Office at Topeka.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 8.—In the lower branch of the Legislature, this evening, a resolution was passed asking the Representatives of New-Jersey in the United States Senate and in the House of Representatives to urge the acknowledgment of Cuba as an independent Power, and directing them to demand the liberation of persons imprisoned in England for seeking to gain the independence of Ireland.

GALVESTON, Texas, Feb. 8.—The Legislature convened at Austin to-day. Much interest is manifested in the result of the Senatorial contest. HAMILTON and SMITH are believed to be the strongest candidates.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 8.—The Alabama and Chattanooga Railroad bill finally has passed both Houses by a large majority. The bill loans the credit of the State to the amount of $3,000,000.

VIRGINIA.

Meeting of the State Legislature—An Appeal for the Removal of Disabilities—Governor Walker's Message.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 8.—The Legislature met at noon to-day. The House, by vote of 108 to 18, adopted a resolution asking Congress to remove all the political disabilities of the people of Virginia. The colored members voted for the resolution, the negatives being the white members of the extreme faction. The Governor's message was read, and was substantially as given below:

He congratulates the Legislature "that they are the lawfully constituted General Assembly of the sovereign State of Virginia, a State that, notwithstanding fundamental conditions, as futile as unnecessary, is coequal in all her rights and prerogatives with any and every State in the American Union. You and I have qualified by taking the same oath of office, and we have solemnly pledged ourselves before Heaven to support and maintain the Constitution and laws of the United States, as well as of the State of Virginia; that we recognize and accept the civil and political equality of all men before the law, and that we will faithfully perform our official duties to the best of our ability. A strict and conscientious observation of this solemn obligation will redound to the peace and prosperity of the State, and be a vindication of the just expectations of the people and of our friends everywhere. It is your duty to make the law; mine to execute them. Fulfill your duty and I pledge you a faithful and fearless execution of mine. Of the State Constitution he says that "its provision shall have a fair and impartial trial, and when, if ever, experience shall demonstrate the inutility or impracticability of any of them, we will proceed to make such amendments as may seem desirable. The manifestation of a spirit of compromise, on the part of the North, has not been reciprocated by the South. We have done our duty, and we have done it in the right way. We have done it in the exercise of our reason, at home and abroad. The Governor advocates the unconditional admission into the State, and says that any attempt to repeal the oath of the war has only purpose should be frowned down, and condemned. Always have been loyal. Unless we expect to live and die one. Beyond this the chief tenets of my political faith are the maintenance of the public faith, State and national, unimpaired; honesty and economy in the administration of public affairs, the equalization and reduction of tariffs and taxation to the lowest degree compatible with the maintenance of the public credit; free education for all; a fostering care, encouragement and elevation of labor, and, until fully, finally and permanently accomplished, universal amnesty and impartial suffrage. These are fundamental principles in my political creed; and it matters not what you may call them, whether Republican, Democratic or Liberal. So far as applicable, they will be faithfully adhered to in my administration of affairs of the State. Those who agree with them will naturally sustain and uphold the Administration, while those who disagree with them may oppose it."

The Legislature adjourned, after fixing Thursday next for the election of a State Auditor, Treasurer, Secretary, &c.

RETIRED ARMY OFFICERS.

A General Order Relieving Them from Duty—Permission to Engage in Business and Travel at Pleasure.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.—The following General Order was promulgated from the Headquarters of the Army to-day:

1. Under the provisions of the act approved Jan. 31, 1870, General Orders No. 9, all retired officers, who have been assigned to duty, will be considered as relieved from such assignment on the 31st inst., and will proceed to such homes as they may elect.

2. Retired officers, detailed as Professors at colleges under the act of July 28, 1866, section 20, will be considered as relieved from the detail; but they are at liberty to remain at the colleges, if they desire, under any private arrangement with the authorities thereof.

3. It is understood that retired officers may enter upon any private business; that they have a right to change their place of residence or travel at their own pleasure without further authority, except to leave the United States to go beyond the limits of the Continent (Act of March 3, 1869) and that unless specially exempted they should report their address monthly to the Adjutant-General.

4. In thus performing a duty which the law imposes, the Secretary of War and General of the Army feel occasion to express their regret that, in the natural course of things, the long acceptance of most faithful devotion to duty, on the part of the officers concerned, must at last terminate. Doubtless in most, if not in all cases, a respite from unceasing toil and responsibility will be grateful; if, however, coming, as it does, in this involuntary form, it will be without a possibility of implied reproach. The best wishes of the Government for their future comfort and happiness follow these veterans, and those who have preceded them in retirement from all service to the homes of their choice.

By command of Lieutenant-General SHERMAN:
E. D. TOWNSEND, Adjutant-General.

The Connecticut Republican State Convention—A Preliminary Caucus.

HARTFORD, Feb. 8.—Notwithstanding the severe storm, quite a large number of delegates to the Republican State Convention have already assembled. A preliminary caucus for general discussion was held this evening. Hon. DAVID GALLUP presided and remarks were made by General J. R. HAWLEY and others. Many prominent men of the party are present. Senator BUCKINGHAM is here, and will be made President of the Convention to-morrow. Governor JUWELL and the present State officers will be nominated, with the exception of Lieutenant-Governor WAYLAND, who is absent in Europe. Among those named to succeed him are William Pitch, James M. Townsend and Morris Tyler, of New-Haven; David Gallup, of Plainfield; Oliver Hoyt, of Stamford; Henry P. Haven, of New-London, and F. J. Kingsbury, of Waterbury.

THE STORM.

Over Five Inches of Snow in this City—Travel on the Railroads Impeded—Every Mode Detained—A Disagreeable Northeaster.

The snow storm which commenced between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock on Tuesday morning still continued at 10 o'clock on Tuesday evening. A furious gale blew all day. The ferry boats were impeded by the blinding thickness of the storm at sunrise and during portions of the evening. The snow measured in depth at 10 P. M. five and one-quarter inches. The snow storm of Dec. 6 and 7 was attended with a greater degree of cold. When that storm ceased a depth of seven inches was registered. The barometer was very low at 6 o'clock P. M. yesterday—29.28. The thermometer stood at 34°. The snow was not very heavy nor did it continue, as it promised to do in the morning, dry, for rain intermingled with it towards noon and rendered pedestrianism very uncomfortable and almost dangerous, the sidewalks were so slushy and slippery. The cars, of course, were crowded to discomfort, and all the lines doubled up and had four horses to each car. The wind was northeasterly all day; in the evening, however, it veered to the northward, and by midnight went around to northwest. Then the clouds cleared off and it began to freeze, rendering it somewhat difficult for the wayfarer to "foot it" down or up town, as many had to do, forasmuch as some of the lines—the Fifth and Fourth avenues—ceased to run down town by 11 o'clock. Many vexatious delays occurred during the day, though not serious enough to occasion anything more than individual dissatisfaction. At sea no doubt many coasting and inward-bound craft were surprised by the gale, and it is to be hoped suffered not from it. But it was sufficiently violent to make the stoutest heart to fear on board of a vessel too close to land. The Police telegraph wires were broken in many places by the accumulation of ice on them. But one dispatch had been received over them until the afternoon.

The storm yesterday did not delay the mails to any extent on the various roads, with the exception of the late north and Boston, the former of which, being due at 10:30 P. M., and the latter at midnight, were not received until after 2 o'clock this morning. The Washington trains were also a little behind time, but not sufficient to occasion any business inconvenience.

The Storm Elsewhere.

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—A thick easterly snow storm has prevailed since 10 o'clock this morning, and continues this evening.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 8.—A violent northeast snow storm has prevailed all day, and as the night closes in increases in violence, the wind blowing a gale. The snow drifts heavily, and the progress of trains on the Hudson River Railroad is impeded. The snow is already nearly ten inches deep.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—About three inches of snow fell before daylight, since which time it has been raining. The streets are full of slush.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The snow storm which commenced last night continued until daylight. The ground is covered to the depth of about two inches.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Snow to the depth of six inches has fallen to-day.

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 8.—A terrific snow storm has prevailed nearly all day, accompanied by a high wind. All trains are behind time.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 8.—A snow storm has prevailed all day and still continues.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 8.—The trains are all delayed by the storm to-night, the northern downward express arriving an hour and three quarters late. The snow at White River Junction is four inches deep, and at Danville six inches. The Lawrence and Manchester train did not leave Lawrence. The Portsmouth, and the train by the way of Lowell arrived, together with two engines, at 10 o'clock, an hour and three-quarters late. Prince ARTHUR and suite were on board. About 150 people were at the depot eager to get a look at His Highness, who made no appearance, but was visible through the car windows. The train passed on without delay.

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 8.—A severe storm from the north has prevailed since yesterday. The spanish bark Paquete was lost off Gerrado Point, and the counter Antonio was lost a few miles from this port. The steamer Columbia, from New-York, arrived this evening.

ALBANY.

The New Speaker—The Contested Politics Committee—A Democratic Caucus—Forty Legislators—Equality and Workingmen—Speech on Retrenchment—Remarks Upon Legislative Salaries.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

ALBANY, Tuesday, Feb. 8, 1870.

The new charter for New-York has not made the appearance on the floor of members yet, and it would appear to be giving the printers as much trouble as it did its authors. Mr. WHITE to-day moved that 500 extra copies of the document be furnished to members, which was amended so as to make it 1,000, and carried. No action is likely to be taken on the charter for a week to come, and, as stated in a previous dispatch, there is no possibility of its passing either House in its present shape. It is worthy of remark, however, that the New-York delegation express themselves much less violently against the new charter than before they took their last trip to the City. There will be no difficulty in buying up most of the New-York Assemblymen to support it if they are only offered fat berths in the different bureaus, but the anti-Ring Senators—GERRY, CERBERE and MORRIS—will be content with nothing less than the head of a Department. The "Hayloft and choose prem Democrats" have not discovered, as yet, where their interest

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The Exchange Salerooms displayed actual activity yesterday, sales taking place at three different stands simultaneously. The most important sales were those made by MULLER, WILKINS & Co., who disposed of a large amount of City property, including six lots on the south side of Eighty-fourth-street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues. Three of these, 100 feet from Fifth-avenue, were sold in one parcel in March, 1869, for $17,100, and little more than a month later for $6,600 over and above a mortgage of $12,000. In November, 1869, the same property was sold for $9,000 over and above the same mortgage of $12,000. Yesterday the three lots were disposed of separately, and brought an aggregate sum of $20,200. The other three lots, situated 270 feet east of Fifth-avenue, were sold in March, 1869, for $4,600 cash; in May of the same year for $14,500 together; and in November following for $21,000, as appears in the recorded transfers of that year. Yesterday the three lots were struck down for $6,000 each.

The same firm sold four lots on One Hundred and Eleventh-street, between First and Second avenues, and four lots on One Hundred and Twelfth-street, directly in the rear of these. Those on One Hundred and Eleventh-street brought $1,800 each, and those on One Hundred and Twelfth-street $1,800. A lot in 50th-st. adjoining 100 on the south side of One Hundred and Twelfth-street, 125 feet west of Third-avenue, with a two-story frame house, was sold for $6,100, while a similar house and lot on the southeast corner of One Hundred and Ninth-street and Second-avenue brought $6,300. A three-story high-stoop house, with brown-stone front, situated on the north side of Fifty-fifth-street, 20 feet east of Fourth-avenue, with a lot 22 feet 9 inches by 100 feet 5 inches, was sold by the same brokers for $20,600. There was a mortgage of $10,000 on this property, held by the New-York Life Insurance Company.

MULLER, WILKINS & Co., also disposed of a piece of property on the southeast corner of Twenty-ninth-street and First-avenue, occupied as a lumber yard, and a brick stable, the entire premises being 99 feet 9 inches by 100 feet for $29,000. A vacant lot on the corner of Sixth-avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fourth-street, 25 feet by 99 feet 11 inches, brought $6,075.

JAMES M. MILLER offered for sale two house and lots on the north side of Thirty-first-street, between First and Second avenues, the lots being 20 feet by 99, and the houses 20 feet by 35.6, four stories high. Both lots were purchased by Jacob Conner for $8,000 each. Mr. MILLER also disposed of a house and lot in Brooklyn, situated on Fort Greene-place, (late Canton-street,) between Fulton and De Kalb avenues. The lot was 25 feet by 100, and the house 25 feet by 40.6, three stories high, with a basement. The property was struck down for $5,500. Both of Mr. MILLER's sales were made under order of the Supreme Court.

E. H. LUDLOW & Co., (MORRIS WILKINS, auctioneer,) disposed of the premises No. 301 Greenwich-street, consisting of a lot 22.2 feet by 75, with three-story brick store and dwelling, for $10,150, to close the estate of RICHARD F. CORTRIGHT, deceased. They also sold by order of the executors of CHARLES M. OLCOTT, the property known as No. 123 Columbia-street, Brooklyn. It is situated 400 feet from Pierrepont-street, and the lot is 25 feet by 150, running quite through the block to Furman-street. The house, on Columbia-street, is 25 feet by 52, three-story high, with attic and basement, and has a brown-stone front. The entire property brought $25,000.

To-day, JAMES M. MILLER will sell a large amount of property in Brooklyn, consisting of 422 lots and gores on different streets and avenues in the Eastern District. This is a peremptory sale in partition, and will take place at the Phenix Building, No. 16 Court-street, Brooklyn. MULLER, WILKINS & Co., will dispose of a considerable amount of City property, by order of the administrators of the late JOHN VANDERPOEL.

WILLIAM H. RAYNOR reports the sale of eight lots, great gore, side of Avenue B, of Jerome, One Hundred and Twenty-fourth and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth streets, for $27,500. Also, three lots, south side One Hundred and Twenty-sixth-street, between Madison and Fifth avenues, for $9,000. Also, two lots, north side One Hundred and Sixteenth-street, 150 feet west of Eighth-avenue, for $6,200.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

AUCTION SALE OF
BULKHEAD, PIER AND WATER PROPERTY
IN WILLIAMSBURG.

ADRIAN H. MULLER, P. B. WILKINS & CO. Will sell at auction,
On THURSDAY, Feb. 10, 1870,
At 12 o'clock, at the Exchange Salerooms, No. 111 Broadway,

THE VALUABLE PROPERTY CONSISTING OF Twenty-six lots of land, situate on North 9th and North 10th sts., between 1st-st. and the East River, in the City of Brooklyn, Eastern District (late Williamsburg,) together with the bulkhead in front of said lots, and the north half of the South Pier. The property carries with it the right of filling out from the present Bulkhead Line, and of extending the pier to the respective bulkhead and pier lines as laid down in the map. On the premises are large shed, engine and boiler house, blacksmith and carpenter shops, and a brick dwelling house.

The sale presents an opportunity seldom offered for the purchase of wharf property for commercial or manufacturing purposes, the depth of water on the pier being sufficient for the accommodation of vessels of the largest tonnage.

It is believed that this property carries with it a large extent of water front lots, say other side of land of equal size on the Brooklyn side, from Peloton Street to Grand Street. Upwards, consists of 1,000 feet, and the pier from 10,000 to 12,000 feet.

Maps, &c., apply to the Auctioneers, No. 7 Pine-st.

JAMES M. MILLER, Auctioneer.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 9, AT 2 O'CLOCK, at the office of SAMUEL H. BARTHOLOW, BY ORDER OF THE SUPREME COURT UNDER THE DIRECTION OF JAMES MAURICE, ESQ., REFEREE.

All lots and gores on Stewart-av., Velick-av., Randolph-st., Ingham-st. and Kossuth-st., and on Randolph-st., between Cypress Hill road, Ingham-st., Harrison-st., Grandpa-st., Thomas-st., Hancock-st., Madison-st., Stewart, Myrtle-st., Suydam-st., Chestnut-st. and Stockholm-st.

The first payment of the whole of the late COLONEL WM. ALLEN'S PROPERTY PURCHASED, and must positively be sold to the highest bidder in order to settle the estate.

They are situated in a rapidly improving part of the Eastern District, and are daily growing in value. The Bushwick Railroad cars run from the ferry, making a safe investment and as large a piece as good a location is seldom offered at public sale. Terms liberal. Fifty per cent can remain on bond and mortgage.

Maps and particulars at the office of the auctioneer, No. 6 Pine-st., New-York.

ADRIAN H. MULLER, Auctioneer.

PEREMPTORY SALE OF VALUABLE STORES PROPERTY ON FRONT AND SOUTH STS., BROOKLYN, EAST RIVER.

110 MILES COMPLETED.

ONLY 7 1-2 MILES
TO FINISH THE WHOLE LINE.

SEVEN PER CENT GOLD, First Mortgage Bonds,

OF THE
Danville, Urbana, Bloomington and Pekin Railroad Company of Illinois.

This road, now VIRTUALLY COMPLETED, as there remained, at latest advices, but 7½ miles of track to be laid, and the line will be opened throughout about Feb. 1, as the main for its completion are now on the ground. Trains are running on the portion completed, and the earnings considerably exceed the anticipations of the Company. Seven-eighths of the bonds have already been taken by investors, and the present active demand will soon absorb the balance.

The road is 117 5-100 miles in length, and is the only East and West line connecting the cities from which it derives its name. No road has ever been built having more numerous valuable connections East and West. At Pekin it connects with Peoria, Burlington and Quincy; at Danville with the Toledo, Wabash and Western; at Indianapolis with the Pennsylvania Central, Baltimore and Ohio, and all the main lines East making a NEW THROUGH DIRECT ROUTE in Illinois and Indiana from New-York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, to Peoria, Burlington, Quincy, Omaha and the Far West. Among the advantages, therefore, claimed for the road is its POSITION, directly on the line of intercoastal travel, and in the track of the great movements of commerce from West to East.

THE LOCAL TRAFFIC must also be very large, as the road passes through one of the richest and most populous sections of Illinois, a State which has become famous for building up several of the most prosperous railroads in this country, through the immense local traffic contributed to them.

SECURITY OF THE BONDS.

The whole amount of bonds which can be sold is less than $15,000 per mile, on a road which has cost about $60,000 per mile; so that the total liability of the Company for interest each year will be only $140,400 in gold, a sum which is really insignificant when the character and location of the road is considered. In addition to the security furnished by a first mortgage upon the entire property of a first-class railroad 117 miles in length, the bonds have lately been further secured by a consolidation of this line with the Indianapolis, Crawfordville and Danville Road, making over two hundred miles under one management, so that the bonds are not only a First Mortgage of less than $18,000 per mile on this 117 5-100 miles, but have been secured by the Consolidated Company under the name of the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railroad Company.

VALUE AS AN INVESTMENT.

The Bonds pay SEVEN PER CENT. IN GOLD, coupons being paid semi-annually, April 1 and Oct. 1, at the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company in New-York. The Bonds may also be registered at the holder's option.

THEY ARE FREE OF INCOME TAX.

THEY ARE CONVERTIBLE into stock, and as the stocks of several of the principal lines of Illinois, such as the Rock Island, Illinois Central, Chicago and Alton, Burlington and Quincy, have sold at the Stock Boards from above par to nearly 200 per cent., THIS PRIVILEGE OF CONVERTING THE BONDS INTO STOCK OF THE COMPANY AT PAR, GREATLY INCREASES THEIR VALUE, and should be highly appreciated.

PRICE 95

and accrued interest, in currency. Gold Coupons, Governments, and all marketable securities received in exchange at the highest market rates, free of commission. We forward bonds by express, free of charge. Pamphlets, containing maps and circulars relating to the road, furnished on application, by the undersigned, Financial Agents of the Company.

EIGHT PER CENT. GOLD

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS
OF THE ISSUE OF
$1,000,000
BY THE
ST. JOSEPH AND DENVER CITY R.R. CO.,

in denominations of $1,000 and $500, coupon or registered, with interest at Eight per cent. per annum, payable 1st February and August, in Gold, free of Government tax, at Morton, Bliss & Co.'s, New-York or Boston. The bonds have thirty years to run, payable in New-York in Gold. Trustees, Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, of New-York. The road is now in operation, and has earned in excess of the interest on the bonds. Government land grants, one alternate section per mile, on each side of the road, for every road built, and is a free and only mortgage. This line connecting St. Joseph with the Pacific Railroad will form a short and direct route to California.

The Company have a Capital Stock of $10,000,000
And a Grant of Land from Congress of 1,000,000 acres, valued at the lowest estimate at 4,000,000
First Mortgage Bonds 1,000,000
Total $15,000,000

Leaving a net equity, after the payment of the entire debt, of $13,000,000 in property, which cost the Company but $60,000 per mile; so that the entire debt is but $1,000 per mile. Can be obtained from the undersigned. Also pamphlets, maps and information relating thereto. These bonds being so well secured and yielding a large income, are desirable to parties seeking safe and lucrative investments.

NOTICE OF STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Cumberland Coal and Iron Company, pursuant to the Resolution of the President and Directors of said Company, to be held at its office, No. 40 Broadway, corner Wall-st., in the City of New-York, on the 19th day of February, 1870, at 12 o'clock M.

The objects of said meeting are: To accept, as an increase of the powers of the Company, and as an amendment to its charter, the provision contained in the act of the Legislature of the State of Maryland, which renders it lawful for all bodies corporate to become subscribers to, and owners of, the capital stock of the last-named Company; also, to consider and act upon the question of a consolidation with the said Company, and the corporation having gas lands in Allegany County, Md.; to arrange the terms of such consolidation, fix the number of trustees to effect the same; to authorize the Board of Directors of the Company to subscribe in its behalf for $3,000,000 of the capital stock of said Consolidated Company, under the laws of Maryland, and to agree with that Company upon the time and conditions upon which such subscription shall be made, and to pay subscriptions for the same; to fix the amount of stock which may be allotted to the Company, including the railroad, as may be agreed upon. And generally, to pass upon and consummate, or reject, any proposition or suggestion for stocks, and the disposition to be made of the same, or any part thereof, and to accept, supplement, or modify a charter of the Consolidated Company, or any part thereof, and to make all alterations in the by-laws, which said meeting may deem necessary or proper.

Notice is hereby given that for the purpose of holding a stockholders' meeting of the Cumberland Coal and Iron Company on the 19th day of February next, the transfer books will close on SATURDAY, Jan. 29, at 3 o'clock P. M.

By order of the Board of Directors.

J. RICHARDS, Secretary.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 10, 1870.

MILWAUKEE AND ST. PAUL RAILWAY COMPANY.

The Directors of this Company have declared a Dividend of Interest Coupons, due Coupons payable 1st February, 1870, as follows: On the preferred stock, 3½ per cent; on the common stock, 3 per cent, payable in gold, free of Government tax, at the Bank of the Metropolis, New-York.

The stock will be delivered on the surrender of the coupons as usual in exchange.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

The annual reception of the Twelfth Infantry, Company G, came off last evening at the armory, corner of Broadway and Fourth-street. Notwithstanding the weather, the attendance was as large as on any previous occasion, and the festivities were enjoyed to the fullest extent. Captain CHAS. J. MCGOWAN officiated as floor manager and gave general satisfaction. Dancing commenced at 9:30 and was continued with spirit during the entire night.

The fine marble bust of the late JAMES T. BRADY, by J. W. MACDONALD, has been completed, and is to be presented to-day to the LAW Students of this City, by the Committee of legal gentlemen appointed at a meeting of the Bar to procure a suitable memorial of the deceased. The bust is a most striking likeness, and gives full expression to the massive head and fine features of the original. Its cost, we understand, was $2,500.

Mr. WILLIAM MACKELLAR, for many years connected with the New-York Press, will lecture on "The Perils of Life" before the Young Men's Christian Association, (Harlem Branch,) corner of Third-avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-second-street, on to-morrow evening. The subject proposed is as novel as interesting, and, in the hands of the observant and thoughtful speaker, cannot fail to prove both entertaining and instructive.

The usual weekly meeting of the Farmers' Club of the American Institute was held yesterday afternoon. M. ELY presided. Letters were read on various subjects, such as "The Value of Old and New Corn for Fattening Hogs," "Large Crops in Illinois," "Vermin Among Fowl," "Swedish Clover," &c. Professor COLTON made some interesting remarks on the western portion of North Carolina. Mr. LOWE, of New-York, read a paper on "The Tomato," and Mr. DURYEA read a paper on "Wheat," after which the Club adjourned. A full report of the meeting will be found in the WEEKLY TIMES, ready to-morrow morning.

Professor RHODE delivered an exceedingly interesting lecture, before quite a large audience, at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association last evening. His subject was the "History of the World," illustrated with the stereopticon. Beginning with the raseous state and chaos, the lecturer gave a pictorial illustration of the formation of the different strata and of the different plants and animals in existence during the different epochs in the world's history. Illustrations were also given of landscapes of the present day. The lecture was exceedingly interesting and instructive, and we hope it will be repeated when the weather will permit more to enjoy it.

The following gentlemen were yesterday elected directors of the Sixth-avenue Railroad for the ensuing year: G. W. Bunker, Frederick De Peyster, T. E. Butler, Waldo Hutchins, Wm. R. Stewart, John Wilson, John P. Moore, A. G. Jones, Henry Demarest, Josiah Jex, Henry Salsbury and Richard Mortimer.

Adjournments were made in the United States Commissioner's office yesterday, in the cases of MORRIS L. HILL, the alleged defaulting cashier of Westchester County; of STURGISS and WETMORE, the alleged dishonest conspirators, and of MORRIS LOZER, charged with committing whisky frauds.

A brief session of the Microscopical Society was held last evening at Mott Memorial Rooms, No. 58 Madison-avenue, Dr. J. H. HITON presiding. Observations were made on a cancer cut from the breast of a woman, followed by a discussion of diaphragms as applied to various optical instruments. On account of the storm, the attendance was limited, and the meeting adjourned early.

Rev. Dr. DOWLING, at the Berean Baptist Church, corner of Bedford and Downing streets, last evening repeated his entertaining lecture on "Marrying and Matrimony." It was frequently applauded.

Mr. MATTHEW D. GREENE, who died at his residence, No. 120 Thompson-street, on Monday, was formerly very prominent in politics in Whig and old Republican times. He held the office of Harbor Master in 1855 and 1856, and in all other public offices held by him he discharged the duties with ability and credit. Mr. GREENE had a large circle of friends, who will be pained to hear of his death.

The steamer Connecticut, which has safely reached this City from Albany, found the ice from two to six and a half inches in thickness, and her paddles were nearly ruined from contact with the ice. She will not attempt to return at present.

Pioneer Lodge, No. 42, I. O. of G. T., has had the following officers installed by State Deputy MARSHAL, viz.: W. C. T., WM. G. COXSON; W. V. T., SOPHIE KINGSBON; W. S. R., RUFUS STODDARD.

"Ghosts and How they are Made" will be one of themes treated of in Professor NOYES' lecture on Friday evening next, before the Young Men's Christian Association. This is one of the interesting course now being delivered on the "Special Senses."

The annual ball of the Adams Express Employes Association was held last evening at Apollo Hall, Broadway and Twenty-eighth-street. The proceedings commenced at an early hour in the evening, and did not terminate until an advanced hour this morning, when the assemblage dispersed fully satisfied with the festivities. The different Committees performed their duties with courtesy and satisfaction to all.

At the Essex Market Police Court yesterday, before Alderman MILLER, MARY A. CARR was charged, at the instance of WM. KEARNEY, with a felonious assault, in stabbing him in the arm with a knife. It appeared that the prosecutor, who resides at No. 624 Sixth-street, had an altercation with the prisoner on Monday evening, when the latter seized a knife, with which she wounded him severely. The prisoner admitted the charge, but stated that she committed the assault in self-defence, as she apprehended that the prosecutor intended to take her life. She was held to answer.

MICHAEL DEVINE, a compositor, residing at No. 189 Division-street, was brought up at the Essex Market Police Court yesterday, before Alderman MILLER, on a charge of shooting at ANDREW CUSLEN, No. 119 Baxter-street, with intent to kill. Mr. CUSLEN stated that he was standing near the entrance to his house on Monday, when the prisoner came up, and presenting a revolver at his head fired. Fortunately the shot did not take effect, and before the prisoner could repeat the offence he was arrested by Officers SHALVEY and JARNOS, of the Seventh Precinct, who were on duty near the spot at the time. In his possession were found a number of forged checks on the Citizen's Bank, purporting to be signed by Sheriff O'BRIEN. DEVINE was held to answer in default of $2,000 bail.

JAMES A. ST. JOHN and AUGUST PAULI, each 17 years of age, were arrested yesterday, and arraigned before Judge QUINN to answer a charge of having collected money from JOSEPH HERMANS, of No. 11 Broadway, by means of forged orders. They were remanded for examination.

PATRICK RYAN, doing business as a liquor dealer in Chrystie-street, was held for examination yesterday, on a charge of violating the Internal Revenue law.

ISAAC LEICHENSTEIN, of No. 14 Ludlow-street, was held to bail yesterday by Justice QUINN at the Tombs, on a charge of having in his possession $160 worth of sewing silk stolen from the store of HABIL & BOOTH, at No. 469 Broadway.

NELSON WHITMAN, a sailor, fell dead in South-street yesterday with heart disease. He resided at No. 65 Market-street.

At 6 P. M. yesterday a fire was discovered on the third floor of No. 448 Broome-street, occupied by LOUIS GEHLER & Co., umbrella makers; damage $150. The second floor, occupied by LENT & BRAMAN, trimmings, damaged $125. The building is owned by FRANCIS GIBBONS, and damaged about $150. All insured.

A fire occurred yesterday at No. 16 Lispenard-street, occupied by FORDMAN & BRO., hair manufacturers. Loss $200; insured $600.

A fire broke out in the basement of JOHN MCGUIGAN, dealer in second-hand furniture, yesterday. Damage $50.

BROOKLYN.

Rev. LEONARD W. BACON tendered his resignation as Pastor of the New-England Church, in Williamsburg, about a week ago, and the Church met to consider it on Monday evening. After some discussion the resignation was accepted. Mr. BACON seeks release from his present charge because he regards the interests of a large city parish as requiring care and labor such as are entirely beyond his physical powers of endurance, as well as because of his desire to occupy a position more in accordance with his tastes and his mode of working.

The Special Committee, consisting of Aldermen Guck, Thorne, McGroarty, Willard, Travis and Elliott, who were appointed to take into consideration the proposed amendments to the City charter, have agreed to meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock, to proceed to Albany to meet with the Special Committee appointed by the Democratic members of Kings County to report proper amendments.

JOHN TINCK, a German, 20 years of age, residing at No. 45 State-street, attempted suicide yesterday afternoon by swallowing some vitriol. He was taken to the City Hospital, and it is thought he will recover.

JAMES KIERNAN, a poor, dissolute fellow, about 35 years of age, was found dead yesterday morning, at the corner of Broadway and Tenth-streets, Eastern District.

It is reported that 42,180 persons visited Prospect Park last week.

There were 136 deaths in Brooklyn last week. Only one of these resulted from small-pox.

An important meeting was held Monday evening by some of the large property owners of Newtown, to devise means to reduce the taxes of the town and to mature some plan by which any total legislation in favor of repealing certain streets, at the expense of the entire town, can be obtained. A committee of prominent citizens was appointed.

LONG ISLAND.

At Richmond Hill, on the South Side Railroad, Mr. RICHARDS has in process of completion twenty residences. The streets and avenues have all been planted with shade trees. At Valley Stream E. R. LITCHFIELD has commenced ten dwellings, and the plans for twenty more are all in and accepted. At Woodbury, a station on the Rockaway branch, SAMUEL WOOD is building the finest hotel on Long Island. It will have a front of 200 feet, and will contain 140 rooms. Its cost, with furniture, will be upwards of $100,000. He is also building thirteen cottages, to be let to families wishing to occupy them for the Summer. It is expected that Woodbury will be one of the finest places of resort on the Island.

The case of ALVIN OAKSMITH, the Patchogue wife beater, has brought to light some strange transactions of that strange family. It will be remembered that the bark Western Bell was overhauled off Fire Island, in 1865, and APPLETON OAKSMITH, with a number of men, captured. The bark was taken into Boston and condemned as a slaver, and OAKSMITH sentenced to imprisonment for a term of years. OAKSMITH escaped. The husband persuaded the wife first to send the oldest child ostensibly to its father and then follow it herself. The wife never found her husband, and since that date has not seen her children, she being entirely ignorant of their whereabouts. The brother of the wife and other friends have spent money and time, to no purpose, in trying to solve this mystery.

On Monday last, ALBERT MUNSON, a Marshal of Whitestone, was taken before Justice QUARTERMAN, on complaint of JOHN ATTERBURY, who alleges that MUNSON extorted $4 from him, threatening to arrest him for some alleged crime. MUNSON was bound over in bonds of $500 to appear.

The revival interest at Patchogue, in the Methodist Church, is still unabated. Three sessions are held daily. Sixty new members have joined the Church during the last three weeks. Rev. Mr. STANBURY, the pastor of the Church, aided by Rev. CHARLES JAYNE, of Brooklyn, conduct the meetings.

Powerful religious revivals are in progress in several villages of the island, and nightly meetings have been held for several weeks. At Sag Harbor, Catchogue, Patchogue and Yaphank there is an unusual religious interest apparent, and a large number of conversions have occurred.

A few days since, a child ten months old, daughter of WM. HOMAN, of Yaphank, while tied in a high chair, fell over on the stove during the absence of its mother from the room, and was burned in a shocking manner. Its piercing cries attracted Mrs. HOMAN's attention, who immediately hastened to its assistance. It is thought that the child will recover.

NEW-JERSEY.

A conductor of the Orange train on the Morris and Essex Railroad has been convicted of assault and battery in Newark for forcibly ejecting a passenger named HALL, who had made a habit of getting off the way train after his ticket had been punched, and pursuing his course to New-York by subsequent trains. The conductor, whose name is WORKHAUSER, drew the attention of the Superintendent to this breach of the Company's rules, and he received orders to eject HALL should he repeat the practice. It appeared from the testimony that the rule was disregarded from a neglected enforcement.

Yesterday afternoon the Overseer of the Poor of Newark caused the arrest of two impostors, one named MARGRET BURKE, alias Capper, and WILLIAM JOHNSON, alias Percy McManus, on a charge of swindling him by false representations. The assumed female is a soldier's widow, and continued to draw his pension since his death, although she married JOHNSON or McManus last October. This being unknown to the Overseer of the Poor, he supplied them with provisions and fuel as a destitute family, while the woman likewise, in order to procure more money for rum, sent her son to beg during the week and to different Sunday Schools on the Sabbath. They were remanded for a hearing.

A feud which has for some time existed between the pupils of St. Michael's school in Jersey City and a party of Hoboken boys, terminated in a sort of battle between them on Monday afternoon upon the Champion beer hall grounds in Jersey City. The Hoboken boys, drawn up in line, awaited the dismissal of the schoolboys, and attacked them as soon as they appeared. The schoolboys resisted stoutly, but were finally compelled to take to flight. Three of the assailants were taken into custody and committed Tuesday for two days to the cells in the City Prison.

Yesterday afternoon a colored man about 25 years of age, named AMOS STACKHOUSE, and a German female named ELVIRA GROSMAN, 18 years old, were arrested on a canal boat at Newark on a charge of cohabiting. The wife of STACKHOUSE is now in the Essex County Jail awaiting trial for adultery. The accused were ordered to leave, and considerable force had to be used in conveying them to the Police Station, where they are now temporarily confined pending a preliminary examination.

Miss BRIDGET O'GORMAN delivered her second lecture on "Convent Life," in the Newark Opera House, last evening, to an audience of about fifty persons. She was allowed to proceed without interruption.

The trial of JAMES and JOHN LAUGHLIN, for having fired a liquor saloon owned by the former on Grand-street, in Jersey City, and of THOMAS CONNOLLY, as an accessory, was continued in the Hudson County Court of Quarter Sessions yesterday. It was testified by Miss CONNOLLY, who kept a military store adjoining the saloon, that she had overheard CONNOLLY and JAMES LAUGHLIN discussing the details of a plot to burn the store. It was also testified that the men had been heard to throw kerosene over the wall before applying the match. The premises had just previously been insured for $2,000.

An effort was made, but failed, on Monday evening in the Bergen City Common Council, to secure a hearing for ALD BAUER, of the Police force, who, with Chief KEENAN, was deposed from his position some time since, for political reasons.

The citizens of Bergen City held a meeting at the room of the Citizens' Association last evening to take measures to further the Boulevard project.

A man named DAVID MORAN was committed in Newark yesterday morning, on a charge of robbing the grocery store of LOUIS HAUSER. Another alleged burglar, named JOHN FAY, was arrested in a house on Nesbit-street, Newark, where he secreted himself during the absence of the family.

A man named HELBERT, of Newark, has been missing from his home since Sunday. His friends fear he is insane.

Mr. JONATHAN MERKER was thrown from his carriage at Milburn on Monday afternoon, receiving injuries that it is feared will prove fatal.

The Union County owners of meadow lands make strong objections to the passage of the new bill for the improvement of their lands. They are of the opinion that the projectors of the old Driggs Land Improvement bill are at the bottom of the present project.

A Newark hatter named HENRY PROPER was yesterday held to bail on a charge of committing an atrocious assault and battery on a man named GEO. DURR.

The Committee on Consolidation will, it is said, report in favor of allowing the Aldermen in Jersey City and others to hold over under the new charter.

WM. WALKER was found insensible on Monday morning at his residence in York-street, Jersey City. He died in the evening at the Jersey City Hospital. Coroner BURNS will hold an inquest to-day.

On Monday night two fires originated in Elizabeth, caused by the explosion of kerosene lamps, but, fortunately, entailing only slight damage and no personal hurt.

Officer DEPREE, of the Elizabeth Police force, averted a probable railroad accident on Monday night, by taking charge of a beam which a drunken man was undertaking to drive across the track in the presence of an approaching train.

Kings County Republican General Committee—Sympathy for Cuba.

The Kings County Republican General Committee met in Brooklyn last evening. GEORGE C. BENNETT presiding.

The Committee on Contested Seats reported in favor of the delegations headed as follows: First Ward, E. A. STUDWELL; Sixth Ward, E. D. WEBSTER, and the Twenty-first Ward, J. REEDY.

In the case of the Twelfth Ward, the Committee reported in favor of WM. H. HUNLEIGH and CHAUNCEY M. FELT being a Committee to make a new enrollment, and to hold a new election for ward officers and delegates to the General Committee on Wednesday evening, Feb. 23.

J. E. WELLS offered the following:

Resolved, That the people of Cuba in their efforts to establish a Republican form of government have our deepest sympathy, and we hold out hope that our sympathy may be more than a mere word.

Resolved, The time now spent in the councils of the nation is devoting vague generalities of international law, suggestive as the property of initiating, in one of the Committees of Congress, a bill for the sentiments of this body, at least, are in sympathy with those who are struggling to establish a Republic in accordance with our own; and

Resolved, That our Government has been negotiated for at one time, and the cause of liberty and free institutions demand from the Government of the United States the immediate recognition of the Republic of Cuba, by granting to them belligerent rights.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing be forwarded to our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

Colonel E. D. LAWRENCE spoke in support of the resolutions and urged their adoption by a unanimous vote.

Messrs. GEO. C. BENNETT, E. A. WEBSTER and other gentlemen were opposed to the resolutions being put in the form of a resolution, but they were offered, and they were referred to a special committee of five, to report at the next regular meeting.

The Committee then adjourned.

DOWN AMONG THE COCK PITS.

A Visit to Some of the Dens in Mulberry-Street—The Keepers Seven Vagrants on All Who Enter Them, Particularly Mr. Burke.

Since the recent illustrious raid made by the detectives of Mr. BERGH among the disreputable frequenters of the cock pits of New-York and Brooklyn, there has been great excitement, and bitter feeling prevails among all classes of low sporting men, especially in the Seventh Ward, against the author of their trouble; and, under the present state of affairs, it would undoubtedly be at a great risk for Mr. BERGH to show himself among their miserable haunts in Cherry and Madison streets. To show what an immense power those cut throats wield in the politics of the City and what use they make of their influence, it may be stated that a petition has been gotten up, to be presented by Hon. BRYAN REILLY, member of Assembly from the Seventh Ward, to the Legislature, abolishing Mr. BERGH's Society entirely. Those who were arrested by the Police last week, while in the midst of their disgusting sport, were released almost as soon as Mr. BERGH had quitted the Station House, although at the time it was understood between him and the Sergeant at the desk that the prisoners would be detained until he could appear on the following morning and prefer charges. Their friends, the politicians, in the meantime had no trouble in effecting their release.

The patrons of this barbarous and inhuman sport are composed of the lowest strata of society, of every nationality and sex, for females—provided they can pay the entrance fee—are allowed to enter the pits, and stake their money on their favorite bird. Not unfrequently candidates for and members of the City Council lend their presence, and bet freely with their friends, the thieves and blacklegs. In the "good old days" before the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was in existence, these cock fights were the school of the future politician. The one who could handle his bird to frequent victories was a noted man and is now. They lead with their pals, the dog and prize fighters, the gangs of "repeaters" at every election, and well paid for their trouble. In Madison and Cherry streets, nearest to Grand-street, the cock pits are mostly located. Entering a saloon door, day or night, the visitor, be he decently clad, is confronted with a motley crowd of human beings, who eye him suspiciously in a quiet way, for they are constantly in dread of a visit from the police, but after the rough crowd is called up to the bar and invited to drink of their favorite beverage—a hot, fiery fluid called "Bourbon," by the barkeeper, they grow communicative, and talk about the recent raids, how Teddy Looney handled "speckled Ben," and how Jimmy Fitzgerald "used up "Johnny the Greek," (the names of favorite birds.) But to find the pits is the worst part of the affair. In all of the saloons when a main is to come off the men are informed by signals and quietly wend their way to the pits in groups or singly to avoid suspicion. The pits in these dens are what are termed by them "Steel Figures," in the complaint of Mr. BERGH, who are constantly on the lookout for mains, which, when all right, word is sent up to Headquarters and the Police make a descent. When the detectives are too hot on the scent they change their base to Williamsburg and Hudson County, New-Jersey.

The most noted den where cock fighters are wont to meet is that kept by "Mike" REYNOLDS in Cherry-street. The proprietor himself is a bleer-eyed veteran of considerable ward influence, about 40 years of age, forty of which he has spent in the business and training game birds; he is looked upon with a sort of reverence by the rest of the fraternity, by reason of his great experience. A TIMES reporter visited his saloon yesterday afternoon to ascertain his feelings in regard to Mr. BERGH's recent movements. The old man had evidently been on a spree, as he spoke very thickly and slowly. All were present, by their looks, were evidently displeased at his say-ing too much to a stranger. The following colloquy ensued, which goes far to show, if words amount to anything, that they will fight the officers of the law to the bitter end:

REPORTER—How long have you been in this business?

MIKE—Well nigh on six and thirty years.

REPORTER—What do you think of Mr. BERGH's recent action in arresting a number of your friends for cock fighting?

MIKE—I think the thing is unconstitutional, and he had no more right to interfere than I would have a right to interfere with you.

REPORTER—But do you not think it cruelty to animals when not unfrequently six and seven fowls are killed in the pit?

MIKE—No; not a bit. Roosters ain't animals. Where can you find anything in the Scripter, or any other book, that says they are?

REPORTER—I refer you to Mr. BERGH for that answer.

MIKE—Hang Bergh, the superannuated old thief. Why don't he give Gimmons back his birds? They're his property, and there that old Yankee has 'em in his office a fattenen of them, and I guess when they're fit to eat he'll invite his friends and have a good time. Them cocks wot he captured is worth $10 apiece, and it's downright robbery, I swear it is.

REPORTER—Everything is fair in war. You men know the law sufficiently well to observe it and its penalty by having matches daily in different places, and yet, when you happen to be arrested, you raise a howl of indignation.

MIKE—We have as good a right to appeal as if you were knocked down and robbed. It's all the same. No Jury in this City will convict us, for they know well wot we would do to them if they wouldn't keep their "peelah" six months if they go back that way. If I ever see the old duffer I'll make him sick. You just tell him if he comes down this way to interfere we'll make it warm, I'm—if we don't.

REPORTER—Well, Mr. BERGH says that some of your best men, men whom you would not expect, are his main informers—who give him all the information he wants; so you can't throw all on him.

MIKE—(Evidently staggered)—Hoss, if that's so, we've got to watch our men; but I don't believe it. Why, I know some of them. They can't be any of our boys to do such a mean trick as that. We're on the lookout, and we'll fight him in the Courts as well as the Assembly, and I'll bet my head against a cent that we beat him.

At this the whole crowd yelled their approval, and our reporter departed for several other dingy, dilapidated saloons in Cherry-street, where the gossip was entirely devoted to Mr. BERGH's detectives, and the recent raid. They all express a decided wish to punch that estimable gentleman's head, should he make them a visit. The majority of the matches are now fought in the adjacent towns in Williamsburg, where the "fancy" have no fears of arrest.

The First Sunday Prayer Meeting at "Kit's" Bower.

Notwithstanding the disagreeable weather about sixty persons attended the first monday prayer meeting at the former home of "Kit" BURNS, in water-street, yesterday. Among them were two weather-beaten sailors, who united heartily in the services, several women, who were evidently denizens of the depraved neighborhood, besides many who were not, and a number of the worst boys in the vicinage, who apparently found it difficult to maintain a respectful demeanor, but nevertheless did it out and, perhaps, some of them received a lesson that they will never forget. The services consisted of prayer, singing and exhortation to repentance and good works, and were conducted by Rev. Messrs. HORN, LITTLE and other clergymen, assisted by several volunteers in the Water-street army of occupation. Most of those who participated in the singing and the result was sounds discordant to all save Christian ears. To these it was sweet music, and there will be more of it to day at noon. Prayer meetings will be held at the hallowed dog-pit daily at the same hour, and evening meetings will soon be inaugurated there.

The Thompson Collection of Paintings—Sales Yesterday—Principal Features Disposed of and the Purchasers.

The sale of paintings belonging to the Thompson collection was continued yesterday, at LEARS' Art Gallery, and the attendance at the morning session, notwithstanding the storm, was large, the rooms being crowded. As a whole the building was perhaps a little more lively than on the day previous, and the prices at which the paintings sold somewhat more generous. On Monday 88 paintings were disposed of, bringing in the aggregate $8,360 50. At the morning sale of Saturday 110 pictures, numbered from 241 to 350, inclusive, were struck off, and the amount realized was $4,997. Among the most general buyers of the sale were Mr. H. C. LEWIS, of Coldwater, Mich.; Mr. D. E. MEADE, of Dayton, Ohio; Mr. ROGERS, of Salem, Mass.; Mr. HUGHES, of Philadelphia, Penn.; Mr. W. W. GOODRICH, of New-York; Mr. MCCLURE and Mr. BARLOW, a dealer of Washington, D. C.

The following were the principal paintings sold during the morning, with the number, title, price and name of purchaser, in order: No. 242, "Lafayette and Madame Roland drawing a plan for the Festival of the French Federation in 1791," by BAUER, J., said to be painted from life, $110, purchased by H. C. LEWIS, of Coldwater, Mich. No. 252, "View in Shelburne, N. H." by BIERSTADT, A., $62, bid in. No. 257, "The Dead Christ with Mary Weeping," by GREYER, GASPARE DE, $132; No. 260, "Mr. Dyke, a Scaler, No. 212, "The Old Rondolde Inn," by WILLIAMS, E. F., (London,) $415; Mr. LIVINGSTON, of this City; the highest priced picture sold during the morning. No. 272, "Scene in Wales," by MOSWILIEM, $205; Mr. JAMES SUTTON, of this City. No. 274, "Dover Cliffs, with the Pier Head Lighthouse and the Three Mills, which serve as a Landmark," by CAMPBELL, S., $205; Mr. LEWIS, of Michigan. The competition on all three of these pictures was quite active, and the bidding spirited. No. 276, View of the White Mountains," by FORTES, B. R., $105 50; Mr. FROSS, of New-York. Nos. 279 and 280, "Duck Shooting" and "The Gray Squirrel" both by Bierstadt, A., $105, and for each of these a purchaser by Mr. W. W. GOODRICH, of this City. No. 281 this artist in the latter name is unimportant, but particular attention and bringing small prices. No. 288, "White Mountains," by BIERSTADT, A., $105; Mr. LEWIS, Jr., Mich. No. 289, "View of Tivoli," by BIERSTADT, A., $105; Mr. JOHN L. CRAWFORD, of Baltimore, Md. No. 293, "A New-England Sunset," by BIERSTADT, A., $105; Mr. MCLOW, dealer, of Washington, D. C. No. 295, "Charity," by SCHIDONE, BARTOLOMEO—a painting for which Mr. THOMPSON, as was stated, paid $6,000; purchased by Mr. D. E. MEADE, of Dayton, Ohio, for $105. No. 296, "Pastoral Scene, Flying Dutchman," by BRIGHAM, R. E., $110; Mr. KERR, of this City.

Among the leading paintings sold were: A mythological piece, by LEMOIN, $52 50; "Oneida," by RIDOLFI, $52 50; "Horse Startled by Lightning," by MORLAND, $57 50; "Sappho," by WETZALL, (R. A.,) $52 50; A Flemish scene by HOBBEMANN, (the younger,) $57; "Landscape and Cattle," by, SHAMAN, $55; two marine views, by IBBETT, (companion pieces) $51 each; "Landscape," by BIERSTADT, $52, bought by Mr. SHIPMAN, of New-York. Portrait of Miss BERKINS, by Sir HENRY RAEBURN, $57 50. Female figures, by HEMON, (Sc. Pastoral, by RAUSCH, $52 50; A Flemish scene by GAINSBOROUGH, (R. A.,) $52, both purchased by Mr. BARLOW. A "Dunes," by WASHINGTON ALLSTON, $70, sold to Mr. MCCLURE. "Landscape," by DIEGLE, $52 50, and "St. John," painted by SIRANI, $52, bought by Mr. W. H. MOTT. The sale of last evening commenced with lot No. 361, and comprised some of the best paintings in the collection. As a general thing, however, they were sold at very low prices. "Blowing Hot and Cold," by JACOB JORDAENS, brought $210; a portrait by Sir GODFREY KNELLER, $60; "Emigrant Train Attacked by Indians," by CHAS. WIMAR, $1,000, the purchaser being a Mr. LAWIS; "The Sacrifice of Prolixena," by CHAS. NATOIRE, $175; a landscape, by BLOEMEN, $105; "Summer Heat," by C. WAISWRIGHT, $105; landscape, by H. P. HURT, $105. The remaining pictures, chiefly small landscapes and portraits, sold at merely nominal prices. About one-third of the whole collection has now been disposed of.

MURDER TRIAL AT NEWARK.

In the Essex County Court of Oyer and Terminer, at Newark, yesterday the trial of LEONHARDT SCHUMM for the murder of CORNELIUS STAHL was commenced before Judge DEPUE and Associate Justices THESE, GUILD and ISS. The Court room was crowded with an eager audience, principally composed of Germans, who manifested much interest in the proceedings. The prisoner sat by the side of his counsel and betrayed deep concern in the proceedings. He manifested much nervousness and trepidation. He is by no means ferocious looking. The facts of the case were fully published in our columns at the time of the occurrence, and may be briefly summarized as follows: Late on the night of the 27th of November or early on the morning of the 28th, a party of the boarders of JACOB HIZER, residing at No. 21 Beverly-street, Newark, entered the barroom and commenced drinking copiously, till they became rather intoxicated. A quarrel subsequently ensued, which was renewed three times, in which several of the party, among whom was the deceased, participated. The evidence elicited as to the stabbing of SCHUMM was somewhat obscured and contradictory, as all were drunk, and apparently oblivious of everything that transpired. The prosecutor of the plea, Mr. TEINWORTH, reviewed the salient points of the case, and alluded to the absconding of the prisoner, the offering of a reward for his capture and his final arrest in Connecticut by a member of the New-Haven Police force.

The first witness was JACOB HIZER, the proprietor of the saloon in which the murder occurred. He testified he witnessed the inception of the quarrel, and went to call some of the other boarders to quell the disturbance, but when he returned he found SCHUMM bleeding; he then closed up the saloon, and went for a doctor, and told some parties outside, who wanted to see it that the fight was over, was only cut; this announcement by Hizer proved to be true, the man suffering, as well as a man named WORTS, who went out in the middle of the affray, to call the "watch," wounded; that he knew SCHUMM for a long time; three knock downs during the afternoon, the last one being between STAHL (deceased) and a man named WIEBEL, after which the former got up and apologized that he had knocked Schumm was staggering, who was a friend mate of WIEBEL; he knew no more of the occurrence.

Dr. DEDI, the County Physician, not justified in having made a post-mortem examination of the body and concluded that death was from a stab wound inflicted on the left ventricle of the heart.

L. W. THOMSON, Surveyor, being then sworn, produced a diagram of the scene of the murder. He was followed by a number of witnesses who saw the fight, but at the moment of the stabbing his back was turned, as he was attending to the stove.

At this period of the trial the Court adjourned till this morning. The trial is likely to last several days.

A Fantastic Movement.

The Committee of the Grand Army of the Republic of the State of New-York, of which Colonel PELZ, of this City, and Colonel MCQUADE, of Western New-York, are members, appointed recently to effect an amalgamation of that body with the Union Home and School, whose objects are similar, has succeeded in accomplishing its mission. Under the new arrangement the Board of Managers will be increased to thirty members, equally divided between the representatives of both organizations. The Committee, which is now composed of fifteen gentlemen, is to be increased by the addition of fifteen comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the other Committees are to be shared equally between the two bodies. An effort is being made to induce the Legislature to appropriate a per capita allowance for the children now under the care of the Union Home and School, and it seems probable that so worthy a bill will pass by an unanimous vote.

Williams College Alumni Dinner.

The annual dinner of the Williams College Alumni Association of this City and vicinity will take place at the St. James Hotel, corner of Broadway and Twenty-sixth-street, on the evening of Feb. 22, 1870, (the anniversary of the birthday of EPHRAIM WILLIAMS, the founder of the College,) at 6 o'clock. President MARK HOPKINS and other members of the faculty, and a number of the Alumni, will be present on the occasion. Gentlemen attending at the dinner will be allowed to introduce ladies into the dining hall at 8 P. M., in time to follow the addresses; and arrangements will be made for the occupation by the ladies of one of the parlors until the time for their reception in the dining hall. Tickets may be obtained of the Committee, which is as follows: Charles A. Dawison, No. 24 William-street; Henry H. Anderson, No. 49 Nassau-street; Thomas M. North, No. 127 Broadway; Dudley Field, No. 4 Pine-street; W. F. Prentice, No. 29 Wall-street; John Adriance, No. 176 Broadway; Archibald Hopkins, No. 8 Pine-street; Eugene Jerome, No. 92 Wall-street; Henry V. O. Myers, No. 84 Montague-street, Brooklyn.

Labor Meetings Last Night.

The umbrella manufacturers of this City—about a dozen houses—have agreed among themselves upon a uniform scale of prices for their goods, and also upon a uniform scale of wages to be paid to their hands, and have initiated matters by a reduction of the wages of these hands, all girls, who thereupon struck. There are about 300 girls engaged in the umbrella-making business in this City, over 200 of whom assembled last night in mass meeting at No. 188 Bowery, for the purpose of adopting a plan of operations, and also for the purpose of perfecting a permanent organization, with a view to joining the Workingmen's Union, the President of which, Mr. YOUNG, was present at the meeting and kindly assisted the girls in their organization. Committees for each shop were appointed, who will get the names of those that will join the Society, the Committees to report to the meeting next Saturday evening, until when it adjourned.

Fraudulent Assessments for Local Improvements.

Over two thousand real estate owners of this City have signed a memorial to the Legislature, remonstrating against the proposed alteration of the laws of 1868, chapter 328, "relative to frauds in assessments for local improvements in the City of New-York," on the following grounds:

1. That the statute as it now exists is a protection to real estate owners against the numerous frauds which have been perpetrated in laying assessments. 2. That it affords a remedy, which becomes the only course, for poor, hard working real estate to go roughly through bonds to bankruptcy mortgaged, as in this City. 3. That the mere fact of a sale of assessed property by the City authorities renders valid, under the proposed amendment, a number of illegal and fraudulent. 4. That the proposed law is aimed solely for the reason that the present one has furnished a remedy against numerous fraudulent impositions upon real estate in this City. 5. That the proposed law is retroactive, and ensures to business all frauds, just consummated, and puts an end to all pending proceedings to vacate them.
